Conference Attended: Analysing Qualitative Interviews, Location: University of Oxford,
Health Experiences Research Group – 19/20 January 2017

Having started the second year of my PhD, I was keen to expand my research skills. As part of the PhD I am conducting a qualitative research study and I want to further my training in qualitative methodology.

While I have undertaken some training in qualitative data collection, completing this course developed my skills specifically in analysing data. The course was delivered by Dr Jenny Hislop, Co-ordinator on the Qualitative Research Methods Teaching Programme at Oxford, who has extensive experience in qualitative research, and I gained significantly from completing the course.
