Decision Analytic Modelling for Economic Evaluation -
Advanced Course. University of York 11th-13th April 2018

Thanks to the College of Medicine and Health doctoral student travel bursary, I was able to attend a course focused on advanced modelling methods for economic evaluation at the University of York this April 2018. The course was delivered by the lead academic experts in this field Andrew Briggs, Karl Claxton, Mark Sculpher, Stephen Palmer and Susan Griffin. My knowledge around Markov modelling has been significantly enhanced and I will now confidently apply these methods to conduct an economic evaluation of Irish water fluoridation policy. The course also included two social events, a platform to network, and I made invaluable contacts with other researchers, industry professionals and faculty working in this arena. I am very grateful for having had this opportunity as I expect it will greatly enhance my career as an academic at UCC.

Thank you CoMH.
