

EDEL BURTON

School of Public Health

Conferences Attended:

World Association of Disaster and Emergency Medicine Congress –
May 2023

This conference hosted nearly 1,000 delegates from across the world, with an array of session types that maximum engagement and information sharing. I had the opportunity to present findings from three of my PhD studies at this conference; one poster and two oral presentations. As a result, I interacted with diverse groups of researchers and clinicians from emergency medicine, prehospital medicine and disaster medicine backgrounds. Networking formed a central component of the conference, as I consolidated existing networks and also built new ones.