

SARAH MARSHALL

School of Pharmacy

Conference Attended:

International Health Congress, Oxford,
26th-28th June 2019.

Attendance at this conference provided an opportunity to present my primary research, via a poster presentation, to obtain advice and feedback from my peers and to acquire skills to better my research practice. In addition, I was given the opportunity to attend several interesting lectures given by experts in the area of global public health, as well as other areas outside of my research. Seeing how the field is developing provided a useful context to frame my own research and has focused my research goals.
