

Lorna Kenny graduated from University College Cork in Ireland with a BSocSc in Social Science in 2009 and an MSocSc in Social Policy in 2015, respectively.

Since January 2017, Lorna has been working as a researcher at the Centre for Gerontology and Rehabilitation at University College Cork.

Her current research interests include: Parkinson's disease and wearable technology, health services research, and food, microbiome, and older people's health.