

Transnational, Transcultural, Transmedial: European Cinema Today

An International Graduate Film Studies Conference

University College Cork

14-15 May 2010

Information on Travel, Accommodation, and University College Cork

- University College Cork is located in Cork city, about fifteen minutes walk from the city centre (i.e. main shopping and business areas). The conference will take place on the university's main campus: the O' Rahilly Building, which is located just off College Road, is where the conference will be held (i.e. conference registration and all delegate panels).
- For details of travel to and from Cork city, a number of accommodation choices, and important information on the university, please follow the link below to UCC's conferencing website (you will see a list of sections pertaining to such details on the left of the website's home page). While UCC aims to keep this information as up-to-date as possible, it is advised, for accommodation bookings, that you contact the residence directly regarding exact prices and other specific details.

- We have organised special conference rates at the following guesthouses (please note that prices are based on one night's accommodation in a single room with bed and breakfast, subject to availability):
 - Garnish House: special rate €65
 - Crawford House: special rate €60
 - Killarney Guesthouse: special rate €50
 - Achill House: special rate €58

To avail of these rates, please contact the guesthouse directly, mentioning that you are a conference delegate (all contact information for these residences can be found on the UCC conferencing website, under the Accommodation section, which is given above).

- As you will see, Cork city offers several choices of accommodation which are ideally located for access to University College Cork. Please note that these accommodation options are offered as suggestions only, and that we are not in a position to comment on the level of service provided.
