

UCC MA in Translation Studies (GERMAN)

- Course co-ordinator: Dr. Rachel MagShamhráin
- Email: r.magshamhrain@ucc.ie

With many years' experience as a professional translator and as the manager of a commercial translation company dealing with prestigious clients like Daimler Chrysler, I know the skills required by a successful professional translator in today's market, as well as the huge value of language as an internationally traded commodity in our communication-intensive world. The design of our MA translation programme in German reflects this knowledge, offering a combination of intensive German ↔ English language training, as well as training in the most widely used translation technologies, and real-time work-simulation exercises conducted in cooperation with commercial translation companies.

Recent reports indicate that graduates with German language skills in particular add significantly to their earning potential. With a Masters' degree in German translation, foreign language skills can be leveraged even further.

Please note that the programme can be pursued either full- or part-time, and that those wishing to do so can opt to exit with a Postgraduate Certificate. Students availing of this option complete only the taught components of the course, and are not required to write a dissertation.

Please also note that German can be taking either singly or in conjunction with another language.

For further information on the structure of the course, please log on to <http://www.ucc.ie/en/cke77/>