Historic Visit by Taoiseach

The Department of Government has been eagerly looking forward to the visit of An Taoiseach, Enda Kenny TD, to deliver the 15th Annual Philip Monahan Memorial Lecture. The organisation of the event has involved a strong collaboration between students and staff of the Department of Government which is great to see. As well as the Taoiseach's lecture on the topic of a renewed public service we look forward to the contributions by the President of UCC and the Lord Mayor of Cork. Additionally it will be brilliant to see three of our outstanding students recognised with presentations by the Taoiseach.

With capacity reached it is not possible for everybody to attend the lecture but the event is being streamed live and can be viewed at www.ucc.ie/en/live.

Guardian Newspaper Continues Series on Irish Local Government written by Department of Government Staff

The Guardian newspaper has commissioned a series of articles on local government written by Dr Aodh Quinlivan of the Department of Government. To date, three have been published. The initial article on Irish local government reform appeared on 21 October 2013 and was entitled 'Austerity plans could see Ireland scrap 83 councils – but will it help?' Following the positive reaction to this article, Aodh wrote a follow-up piece in November about innovation in Irish local government. The latest article was co-written with the Department of Government's Fiona Buckley and was published last week on the issue of gender inequality in local government. The articles were commissioned by The Guardian following the publication of an opinion piece on local government reform by Aodh Quinlivan which featured in Le Monde in October.

New Book Publications

UCC's Department of Government is pleased to announce the publication of new book, The Uyghur Lobby, written by Dr Julie Yu-Wen Chen. An upsurge in violence between Uyghur and Han in China's far western region of Xinjiang has gained increased media and academic attention in recent years as was evidenced in the July 2009 riots. Numbering over eight million, the Uyghur are China's fifth-largest minority nationality, and their mounting aspiration for obtaining more autonomy has contributed to the recent ethnic conflicts in the region. This book looks at those who are seeking to preserve the Uyghur identity, and support the secession of Xinjiang from China in order to create their own independent state by exploring the global operations and sister groups of the Uyghur Diaspora umbrella organization, the World Uyghur Congress (WUC). The second edition of the popular political science book, Comparative Public Administration (Taylor & Francis) will be published in May 2014. The Irish chapter in the book has been written by Dr Emmanuelle Schön-Quinlivan, Dr Aodh Quinlivan and the recently retired Professor Neil Collins.

Who was Philip Monahan?

Philip Monahan 1893-1983

Philip Monahan's life was interwoven with significant figures and events in Irish political and cultural history. Heavily involved in the Irish Volunteers and Sinn Féin, Monahan was imprisoned by the British authorities on three occasions. During his third incarceration he shared a cell with Éamon de Valera in Lincoln Jail and assisted in his escape. Following his release Monahan served as an elected representative on Drogheda Borough Corporation, where he was elected as Mayor, and on Louth County Council. He took the pro-Treaty side in the Civil War and was shot in the neck in 1922.

After recovering, he was sent to Kerry as Commissioner in 1923 by Minister Ernest Blythe to replace the dissolved county council and to administer Republican Kerry on behalf of the Irish Free State government. His final move was to Cork, where he managed the city for thirty-five years. His greatest achievements were the initiation of the Corporation's new housing programme, the eradication of the slums and the creation of the differential rent system. As Commissioner and subsequently City Manager, Monahan set high standards of probity and integrity in public administration – suaviter in modo, fortiter in re – flexible in method, constant in principle. He defined the role of the City Manager and the practice of public management in Ireland.

BSc GOVERNMENT - CK210

‘Become a leader, rather than a follower’

The BSc Government is the flagship academic programme of the Department of Government and it is one of an exciting new generation of degrees on offer in UCC. The four-year programme combines political science and public administration with a broad range of other subjects in business, law, modern languages, social sciences and information technology. An attractive component of the BSc Government is the work placement in third year. This includes the prestigious internship in the New York State Legislature and many other highly prized placements in international (e.g. European Parliament) and national (e.g. Department of the Taoiseach) institutions. The placement programme for the BSc degree has been so successful that the model has since been copied by many other programmes.

Now, more than ever before, the study of government and politics is crucial. Politics affects everyone. Aristotle called politics the master science for a reason: he understood that through politics the future of the world is shaped. Ultimately, politics is the activity through which people make, preserve and amend the general rules under which they live. Do you want to be an active or a passive citizen? Do you want a say in how your future is shaped or do you want to blindly follow the path set down by others? Students of the BSc Government will be the political and business leaders of tomorrow and will be a vital part of the generation that shapes the 21st century. Accept the challenge and be a positive force for change.
