Welcome

Dr Hiram Morgan

It is a delight to welcome our new students to the School of History and extend a warm welcome back to our returning students. This is a large, vibrant and dynamic School. We endeavour to provide a stimulating learning environment that rewards and engages you.

In this brochure, you will find the details of the diverse range of courses on offer, the contact details for staff, and links to further information and services.

Please remember to follow us on Facebook and Twitter at

- <https://www.facebook.com/historyucc> and
- @UCCHistory

The booklet will help you make the choices you want and guide you through the degree's structure and requirements. Please make sure to contact and email staff, or set up a meeting during Office Hours of staff, but please stay in touch. We are an open and welcoming School which values each of you. Generally, all you need to do is email the relevant colleagues or set up a meeting with them during their scheduled office hours and they will clarify any issues you may have.

We have an outstanding range of academic and administrative staff who are prepared to discuss issues, module or option choices, or the content of the history you choose to study.

All staff have office hours, and you should make full use of them to assist your formal studies; your engagement with the programme and the community of UCC historians is crucial to your success. One-to-one staff-student meetings are scheduled during office hours with staff.

Our staff are experts in their respective fields; collectively and individually, we have a vigorous research and publication record, a reputation for teaching excellence and a thorough engagement in the community and international academic events.

We are committed to research-led teaching based not only on the expertise of the academics but also on providing you with opportunities to engage directly with research and to become authors of your historical projects from the first year through to the third year dissertation.

As an undergraduate, you will also have the opportunity to specialise in the area or period that suits your interests most. This brochure outlines the range offered within the school from the Medieval, Early Modern, Modern Irish and European to the International. Please read further details on the staff pages.

You will have the opportunity to practice the craft of history through various forms of writing and communication, from essays to examination, reports to presentations, discussion groups to wiki entries. You will learn to handle archival material, digital sources, manuscripts and visual sources, form arguments, gather and interpret evidence, and read and evaluate secondary sources.

We attract a diverse range of students within the School, from the local to global. We welcome traditional and non-traditional students. We welcome students in significant numbers from various European partner universities through the Socrates programme and a range of North American states through the Semester/Year Abroad programme. The cultural exchange deeply enriches the School. Academic and administrative staff are happy to answer any questions or provide you with any further information you may need. In the first instance, please get in touch with School of History administrator: Ms Colette Pettit, at c.pettit@ucc.ie.

Apart from the diverse range of teaching and learning, we also inculcate a range of skills and attributes that will help you with your employability.

Let me draw your attention to a couple of essentials:

You will learn in classes in university lecture halls that cover the core curriculum. The smaller options will be delivered through traditional lectures and seminars. General lecture recording has been dispensed with.

Structure of the Academic Year

Semester 1:

08 September 2025 is the general start date for the main cohort of returning students (with the usual alternative or early starts in some programmes) with 12 teaching weeks.

Semester 2:

12 January 2026 - General start date for all students with 12 teaching weeks.

Assessments and Canvas

All assessments will be submitted in typewritten format online to the UCC's Virtual Learning Environment, Canvas. Canvas will be a key learning and teaching resource for you in the period ahead.

I hope you enjoy your year, studies, and research, and I look forward to meeting you.

Dr Hiram Morgan, Sept' 2025

Why Study History? –

Starting with the all-important ability to think for yourself, the School of History trains you to gather, sift and interpret information and evidence to arrive at an informed and critical understanding of the world. Learning how to analyse available data and interrogate different points of view are skills vital for historians and essential for any citizen in today's challenging and uncertain times. These are life and work skills that grant you the ability to make a valuable contribution wherever you choose - in the academic arena, in the workplace, in the local community or the wider world. History is highly marketable and adaptable to the needs contemporary world.

Business and government want our high quality and rounded history graduates who are adept at evaluating evidence and wide reading. IBEC and multinationals have repeatedly stated that broadly informed, independent-minded and articulate history and humanities graduates are in short supply. They are oversupplied with narrowly trained and overspecialised ones.

Be assured studying history repays the investment, and it also keeps your future career options open. Our graduates are flexible and analytical. UCC history graduates have a very healthy employment record and are successful in the public and private sectors, at home and abroad. They are not afraid of challenges. Their drive and dynamism ensure that many of our graduates rise to the top in many fields (business, broadcasting, government, politics, administration, education, aid work, consultancy, IT, diplomacy, academia, law etc.). Their creativity and ability to handle pressurised work environments and large volumes of information is second to none. Some samples of our past graduates are highlighted at:

<https://www.ucc.ie/en/history/careers/graduateprofiles/>

Many students want to study history because they enjoyed this subject at secondary school or were inspired by good teachers or by their reading. But it is NOT a requirement for you to have previously studied history before becoming a student here.

The School of History syllabus aims to foster in all our students the highly sought skills of a historian and to offer you access to a broad and exciting choice of specialist studies.

- Our purpose is to teach a balanced appreciation of the genesis of society within a wide range of contexts, whether local, regional, national or international.
- Our teaching uses themes and structures, arguments, interpretations and analyses – emphasising comparative approaches wherever appropriate.
- Students learn about various types of history – social and economic history, modern diplomacy, political ideologies, the history of law, art, religion, women and government, business and much else besides.

- Specialist knowledge gained by our highly-qualified academic staff through their research, informs our teaching. Many of them are national and international leaders in their fields.

Traditional lectures are supplemented by smaller group tutorials where students can develop and display their analytical talents, both in discussions and in writing.

Core modules explore broad historical developments from medieval times to the present with particular reference to their European and Irish contexts. In addition, students can choose from a variety of specialist options which range in time from the pre-Viking period to the present; in place, from Europe to Asia to Africa and the Americas; and in theme, from economic development and international relations to ideologies, cultures, social structures, politics and religion.

We aim to help students to

- be innovative and imaginative
- take the initiative
- work in teams
- be evidence-led
- be articulate and confident communicators

These are all abilities you will be useful in life and at work, whether as a manager, politician, diplomat, journalist, political commentator, administrator, academic researcher, heritage expert, consultant, entrepreneur, public servant or business strategist.

In general, our graduates and postgraduates acquire the adaptability and flexibility of mind that is necessary to survive and prosper.

Teaching

Teaching takes place in lectures, seminars, case studies, small groups and tutorials.

- Lectures give you the foundations of knowledge and guidance in interpretation. They cover larger themes and historical periods.
- Tutorials support large lecture modules (especially cores and survey modules). They enable you to discuss historical topics and controversies in small groups in ways that are not possible in large lectures.
- Small groups, case studies and seminars with lecturers in first, second and third years respectively teach you to look closely at evidence and arguments. They will refine your thinking, develop your source criticism skills and foster your communication and debating skills

Awards & Prizes

The John A. Murphy Prize in Irish History

Professor John A. Murphy (1927-2022) was on the Staff of the College for more than 30 years and retired from the Chair of History in 1990. The prize is awarded to the student who receives the highest mark in the BA dissertation on a topic in Irish History. This prize will be awarded to Martin Byrne at the next School of History prize-giving ceremony, based on an outstanding performance in the 2024-2025 academic year.

The Gabriel Doherty Prize in History

This is a special prize to mark the tragic passing of former member of staff, Gabriel Doherty, in November 2024. This prize will be awarded to Áine Casey Vallely for writing the best modern Irish history essay in First Arts History in the 2024-2025 academic year.

The Leanora Hanrahan Prize in History

It is presented to the student who receives the highest mark in a History module in First Arts. This prize will be awarded to Margaret Austin at the next prize-giving ceremony, based on outstanding performance in the 2024-2025 academic year.

The John B. O'Brien Annual Prize in History

This is awarded to the student who receives the highest examination result in Australian, Economic or Local History. This prize will be awarded to Kirsten Szmidt at the next prize-giving ceremony, based on outstanding performance in the 2024-2025 academic year.

The James and Mary Hogan Prize in History

The prize is presented by the family and friends of James Hogan, Professor of History at UCC (1920 – 63), in memory of James Hogan and his wife, Mary, who worked in UCC library. It is awarded for the best research paper in History in the BA Examination. This prize will be jointly awarded to Adrian Quinn and James Kelly at the next prize-giving ceremony, based on outstanding performance in the 2024-2025 academic year.

The Dermot Keogh Prize in Irish History

This prize will be awarded to the student of the School of History UCC who produces the best undergraduate dissertation or extended essay on either Irish diplomatic history or the history of Church-State relations in Ireland in Third Arts. This prize will be awarded to Lena Power, based on outstanding performance in the 2024-2025 academic year.

The Polish Ambassador Prize in Polish History

This Prize is awarded to the student who produces the best undergraduate dissertation in Polish History in the Third Year Seminar. This prize will be awarded to Aidan Gildroy at the next prize-giving ceremony, based on outstanding performance in the 2024-2025 academic year.

The Jennifer O'Reilly Prize in Medieval History

The late Dr Jennifer O'Reilly, MRIA, FSA, taught Medieval History in University College Cork from 1975 to her retirement in 2008. To mark Dr O'Reilly's profound contribution to teaching and research in the School of History, this prize will be awarded for the best BA seminar dissertation in Medieval History. The prize will be awarded to Freyja Hellebust at the next prize-giving ceremony, based on outstanding performance in the 2024-2025 academic year.

The J.J. Lee History Prize in History

This prize, in honour of Professor Joe Lee, former Head of History at UCC, is awarded on an occasional basis for outstanding performance by a single-honours History student (awarded overall First Class Honours). This prize will be awarded to Claire Reilly at the next School of History prize-giving ceremony for her outstanding performance in the 2024-2025 academic year.

The Chris Williams Prize in International History This is a special prize to mark the tragic passing of Professor Chris Williams in March 2024. This prize is being awarded for the best BA dissertation in international history. The prize will be awarded to Jamie Keegan at the next School of History prize-giving ceremony for outstanding performance in the 2024-2025 academic year.

The Ken Nicholls Prize in History

This prize is awarded to the best written assignment in Early Modern History, also achieving at least First Class Honours. The prize will be jointly awarded to Con Martin and Charlotte Galvin.

The Tom Dunne Prize in History

This prize is awarded for an outstanding overall performance in Third Arts History. The prize will be awarded to Tigerlily Keoghan.

Students of the Year (History):

I Year: Denise Scanlon

II Year: David Cronin

III Year: Freyja Hellebust

These are prizes for the best overall performance by a History student in each of the three years. Similar awards are offered for European Studies and History of Art students, though the prize recipients have yet to be decided. Another prize, the Alan McCarthy Prize in History, will be awarded for the best MA dissertation in Irish History submitted in 2025.

The First Arts programme consists of lectures on aspects of the early and modern history of Europe and America, and of Ireland in particular. It aims to help students develop the practical (and highly transferable skills) of retrieving information, analysing evidence and communicating findings, both orally and in writing). No prior experience of having studied history is necessary.

Structure

The First year acts as a foundation, introducing students to the skills and techniques of historical research. There are two core modules in first year history in the first semester and a choice of several options in the second semester.

There are two lectures a week in the first core module HI1003 in Semester 1. In HI1015, the second core module, students are divided into groups of twenty and meet their lecturers once a week. Students will be notified of their allocated HI1015 time and location on canvas during the first week of term. Attendance at your allocated time is essential from week two. Students are also required to select an option (i.e. HI1002, HI1006, HI1012 or HI1014) from Semester 2.

NOTE: There are no First-Year Option modules on offer in Semester 1.

The classes are divided into small discussion-based tutorials which meet regularly. Arrangements for these tutorials are made at the beginning of each Semester and lists of times, places and groups are posted on School notice boards and Canvas.

In Semester 1 (September) all students take one compulsory course: HI1003: East and West: identities, communities & transformations in the medieval world.

Students must also take the following module in Semester 1 (September) HI1015 The Craft of History.

In Semester 2 (January) students must also choose one of the following four options: HI1002 Modern Ireland: Culture, Politics & Society (Sem 2); or HI1006 US History since 1865 (Sem 2); or HI1012 Women in Europe since 1800 (Sem 2); or HI1014 Aspects of the Atlantic Slave Trade, 1440-1833 (Sem 2).

Semester 1

For Semester 1 you must take:

HI1003 East and West: identities, communities & transformations in the medieval world

Dr Damian Bracken

The module acts as a foundation level course, introducing students to the skills and techniques of historical research in general, with particular reference to the medieval Western and Islamic worlds.

HI1015 - The Craft of History

Dr Jay Roszman

This module explores the discipline of history. Through collaborative learning, this module will teach students how to identify, locate, and analyse primary and secondary sources, how to reference others' work through citations and bibliographies, how to contribute to historical discussion, and how to structure and produce historical arguments using primary and secondary sources.

NOTE: Students will be notified of their allocated HI1015 time, semester & location on canvas during the first week of term.

Semester 2

For Semester 2 you must choose one of the following four option modules:

HI1002 Modern Ireland: Culture, Politics and Society

Dr Donal O'Drisceoil

The module acts as a foundation level course, introducing students to the broad developments of modern Irish history, from the 1850s to the 1990s.

HI1006 US History since 1865

Dr Sarah Thelen and Dr John Borgonovo

US History since 1865' will provide first year students with an introduction to the key events, ideas, and movements that shaped US history from the years 1865 to 2008. It will explore the relationships between culture and politics, foreign and domestic policies, and how the United States interacted with the world around it.

HI1012 Women in Europe since 1800

Dr Maeve O'Riordan

An introduction to the key movements that impacted on the history of women on the European continent since 1800. Students will examine the life-cycle of women across different time periods, geographical areas and social classes to develop an understanding of the factors impacting on the female experience

HI1014 Aspects of the Atlantic Slave Trade, 1440-1833

Dr David Edwards

This module is intended to introduce 1st Year students to the complex history of the Atlantic Slave Trade and enable a better understanding of its legacy, from its emergence during the European 'Age of Discovery' in the fifteenth century until its gradual abolition after 1807.

Examinations and Assessments

HI1002: 1 x 2,000-word essay (50 marks); 1 x 2,000-word document study (50 marks). Assignments to be submitted on a date prescribed by the School:

HI1003: 1½ hr exam in Winter 2025: (70 marks); 1 x 2,000-word essay to be submitted on a date prescribed by the School: (30 marks).

HI1006: 1 x 2,000-word project: (50 marks); 1 x 1,500-word assignment: (25 marks); 1 x 750-word assignment: (15 marks); attendance & participation: (10 marks). Assignments to be submitted on a date prescribed by the School

HI1012: 1 x 2,500-word essay (60 marks); 1 x online quiz(zes) (20 marks); 1 x assignment (20 marks). Assignments should be submitted on a date prescribed by the School.

HI1014: 1½ hr exam in Summer 2026 (80 marks); 1 x 1,000 word essay to be submitted on a date prescribed by the School (20 marks).

HI1015: 1 x 1,500-word essay (50 marks); Portfolio - Source Analysis & Project (50 marks). Assignments must be submitted on a date prescribed by the School.

Intending History Teachers

If you are thinking of a second-level teaching career in history, you should consult the Teaching Council of Ireland website to ensure that the degree path you choose fulfils the requirements to teach History in Irish schools.

Students are required to attain a minimum of 40% in each module in First Year. Students who do not achieve this mark may repeat the examination in the autumn. The maximum mark obtainable in this examination is 40%. A pass mark in any element of Continuous Assessment is carried forward to the autumn. Any failed or non-submitted essays, as prescribed by the School, must be submitted on a date prescribed by the School.

Penalties (for late submission of Course/Project Work etc.):

Where work is submitted up to and including 7 days late, 5% of the total marks available shall be deducted from the mark achieved. Where work is submitted up to and including 14 days late, 10% of the total marks available shall be deducted from the mark achieved. Work submitted 15 days late or more shall be assigned a mark of zero. A penalty exemption scheme is in operation. Please see UCC History's website for details and documentation.

Second Year

Year Coordinator:

2nd Year Timetable + Useful Information:

<https://www.ucc.ie/en/history/undergraduate/secondyearhistory/>

Harry Clarke depiction of St Patrick, St. Michael's Church, Ballinasloe, 1925

The Second Arts programme in History builds on the foundations laid in the First Arts course while foregrounding issues of interpretation and perspective in the writing of history.

The core module, HI2110: Sex, Gender and Power in History (Semester 1), introduces themes of power and gender that are central to all modern historical studies. All students, except those taking 10 credits, are automatically enrolled in this module. (Semester 2).

All students, except those taking 20 credits, are enrolled in HI2105: Case Studies in Research Skills and Historiography (Semester 2), in which students are placed in small groups (c.15 per class) to study how a particular topic of their choice has been interpreted and debated by leading historians. Students will be presented with a list of available topics and invited to indicate their preferences in the course of semester one, and they will then be assigned to a particular class group within the Case Study module.

The remainder of the programme is created by the students themselves choosing from a list of option courses that the department offers, each worth 5 credits. There is an excellent range of choice open to Second Year students, depending on how many overall credits of History they choose to pursue as part of their Arts degree. The only restriction upon entry into individual option courses is timetabling - it is up to students to ensure that they do not choose option courses that clash with core modules in their other subject. History students going for the 40 and 50 Credit choice have the opportunity to pursue a five-credit supervised Project (HI2104).

IMPORTANT:

Second-year marks count towards one third of your final degree, i.e. the sum total of your second year marks will be multiplied by 0.33 and then added to the sum total of your final-year marks multiplied by 0.67 in order to reach an overall figure for your final degree mark.

Assignment Submission Dates:

HI2110: 1 x 1000 word written exercise; 1 x 2500-word essay; 1 x Quiz(zes) (in class & individual). Check Canvas for submission times & dates.

HI2105: 1 x Oral Presentation; 1 x 3000-word Critique to be submitted by 3.00pm Thursday 23rd April 2026.

HI2104: 1 x 5000-word Supervised Project on an agreed topic; draft to be submitted by 11.59 pm, Friday, 23 January 2026 and completed project will be submitted in typescript to Canvas by 11.59 pm Friday, 6 March 2026.

1st Semester Options: Mid term & end of term assignments/essays: Check Canvas for submission times & dates.

2nd Semester Options: Mid term & end of term assignments/essays: Check Canvas for submission times & dates.

HI2104 is a supervised Special Research Project of 5,000 words.

HI2105 Case Studies in Research Skills is examined by assessment and oral presentation.

Required Courses

HI2110 Sex, Gender and Power in History (Sem 1)
(Dr Jason Harris)

The module explores three themes (gender, family, power) over the longue durée from the medieval to the modern period and from both European and non-European perspectives. In the first section we focus on sex and gender, providing an overview of the evolution of these ideas across time.

(Examined by: Quiz(zes) in class & individual (20 Marks); 1 x 1,000 word written exercise (20 Marks); 1 x 2,500 word essay (60 Marks). All to be submitted on dates prescribed by the School.)

HI2105 Case Studies in Research Skills (Semester 2)

Students are assigned to a small group for intensive tuition in historical sources and methods. Courses consist of the close study of a major book or books and/or of the work of a major historian, and/or a set of sources. Writing and presentational skills are taught through detailed study of historical writings and sources. Use of evidence is taught through analysis of historical source criticism. Historiographical perspective is developed through locating the historian(s)/book(s)/sources in their full historiographical context. This course is assessed by a presentation: 20 marks and a 3,000-word critique: 80 marks. It is obligatory to (a) attend at least two-thirds of scheduled case study classes and (b) give an oral presentation to the class on the case-study. Both of these requirements are a pre-requisite for the marking of the critique. Students who fail to fulfil either of these requirements will be required to repeat the assessment in the autumn with their overall mark capped at 40%.

Case Study Allocation

Student numbers in each of the case studies are limited. Places are allocated on the basis of the best fit between student preferences and the number of available slots, except that students with 1st class History Honours from First Year may be given preference. Some ex-quota places may be reserved for visiting students.

Case Studies to be offered in 2025-2026

Ian Milligan, The Transformation of Historical Research in the Digital Age (Cambridge University Press, 2022).

Prof Ciara Breathnach

In this book Milligan traces how the digitisation of historical sources has irrevocably changed the way in which historians work. He outlines the problems associated with doing history in a digital research environment and cautions against complacency on the part of practitioners across the historical sciences. Digitisation raises several methodological issues and has implications for research on gendered, class and 'history from below', in this case study we will explore the opportunities and limitations of working in what Milligan terms 'digital abundance'.

Climate change, Ireland and the early modern Atlantic.

Dr Eugene Costello & Dr David Edwards

A major awakening has been taking place amongst historians around the world over the last 20 years. Were certain events in the past linked to climate change, as they increasingly are today?

In Ireland, this shift in thinking has only just started. We will focus on the medieval-to-modern transition (c.1250-1750). It is a fascinating period in which a Little Ice Age hit Europe, and yet economies grew. How did ordinary people in Ireland manage in this period?

We will examine a number of recent benchmark texts, discussing how they have opened the door to the idea of 'the environment' by using an innovative range of sources. You will learn that established historical narratives don't necessarily have all the answers. Our job is to identify these gaps and to be honest about uncertainties.

Debating the Witch Trials: Boyer & Nissenbaum, Salem Possessed.

Dr Jason Harris

The witch trials that took place in New England in 1692 were dramatic, puzzling, and tragic. They have also resulted in over three centuries of debate that has helped to shape how the history of such events is written. In this case study, we will examine the most influential modern account of the trials, written at the height of new experiments in radical social history in the wake of the student uprisings of 1968. We will dig into the trial records and other contemporary sources in order to examine how the authors built their analysis, and we will look at how subsequent scholars have questioned key parts of their argument.

C. Ó Clabaigh, The Franciscans in Ireland 1400-1534. (From Reform to Reformation, Dublin 2002.)

Dr Małgorzata Krasnodebska - D'Aughton
 The Franciscan Order was one of the most influential forces in medieval and early modern Irish society. The period between 1400 and 1534, dealt with in the book, was marked by the remarkable flowering of the Order. The course analyses the book from a historiographical and methodological perspective. It critically looks at the author's handling of the material, his use and interpretation of primary sources as well as the composition of that material into a scholarly narrative. It includes the hands-on study of primary sources in Special Collections, combined with an introduction to digital projects related to the topic of late medieval Irish monasticism.

Being Jewish in Nazi Germany: the Diaries of Victor Klemperer

Dr Detmar Klein (Case Study No. 1)

The Klemperer diaries give a fascinating and moving insight into daily life in Nazi Germany and into the world of thoughts and emotions of a German-Jewish university professor (and his 'Aryan' wife) in Dresden who survived the Holocaust. The course covers the diary entries from early 1933 until the end of 1941.

Christopher J. Fischer, Alsace to the Alsatians? - Visions and Divisions of Alsatian Regionalism, 1870-1939

Dr Detmar Klein (Case Study No. 2)

The region of Alsace, located between the hereditary enemies of France and Germany, served as a trophy of war four times between 1870–1945. With each shift, French and German officials sought to win the allegiance of the local populace. In response to these pressures, Alsatians invoked regionalism—articulated as a political language, a cultural vision, and a community of identity—not only to define and defend their own interests against the nationalist claims of France and Germany, but also to push for social change, defend religious rights, and promote the status of the region within the larger national community.

Michael Franczak, Global Inequality and American Foreign Policy in the 1970s (Cornell University Press, 2022).

Dr Jonas Kreienbaum

The Case Study engages with Michael Franczak's 2022 Global Inequality and American Foreign Policy in the 1970s. In this book Franczak scrutinizes the "Third World's" call for more global equality through the establishment of a New International Economic Order and the US response to this challenge. Banking on OPEC's newfound oil power in the wake of the 1973/74 oil crisis, postcolonial states demanded fundamental changes to the old order they perceived as "neocolonial". In the end, Franczak argues, the challenge from the South led to a consolidation of US hegemony over the global economy in the 1980s. During the seminar, we will critically discuss the author's main line of argument, comparing it with key texts from the new wave of scholarship on the North-South dialogue of the 1970s and selected primary sources.

Irving V Lipstadt

This study focuses on Deborah E. Lipstadt's book, Denying the Holocaust: the growing assault on truth and memory (Free Press, New York, 1993), and the libel case initiated by David Irving in response to it. It examines the controversy following the publication of Lipstadt's work and the fallout from the verdict in that case. It will look also at the work of one of the expert witnesses for Lipstadt, Richard J. Evans, and his account of the trial, Telling Lies about Hitler, and some other trial accounts such as D.D. Guttenplan, The Holocaust on Trial, as well as the 349-page judgement delivered by Justice Charles Gray, the libel trial judge. Other works considered are Daniel Goldhagen's Hitler's Willing Executioners and A Moral Reckoning, with further reading arising from the controversies in these works examining the role of Pope Pius XII and the controversies surrounding his pontificate. The objective of this case study is to determine how historians may legitimately use evidence and the standard of proof expected in historical arguments. All texts will be accessible via Canvas.

Tom Dunne, Rebellions: memoir, memory and 1798 (Lilliput Press, Dublin, 2004).

Mr Rory O'Dwyer

This case study will involve a close study of this book, a blend of history, historiography and memoir. Students will assist in locating the book, the 1798 Rebellion, and the author in historiographical context. In this process various aspects of writing and presentational skills, use of evidence and historical source criticism will be discussed. It will also include engagement with a range of primary source material of the 1798 period, which relate directly to the book.

Researching the Big House and its people.

Dr Maeve O'Riordan

Terence Dooley's Decline of the Big House: A Study of Irish Landed Families, 1860-1960 is still the leading work on the landed class in Ireland, nearly twenty years after it was first published. This case study will carry out an in-depth analysis of this work and expose students to the skills needed to research the ascendancy class in Ireland through hands-on work with primary sources. Historical perspective will be developed by locating this work in its historiographical context; from the sympathetic memoirs to the popular memorialisation of Big Houses in popular culture during the twenty-first century. This case study would be of especial value to anyone interested in the social history of Ireland during the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries and to those interested in the place of the country house in Ireland today.

LGBT Identities in Modern Ireland: Sources, Contexts, Interpretations

Dr Diarmuid Scully

The study of LGBT Irish identities is an emergent research area with huge potential for historians. Modern Ireland has seen many transformations, but few as dramatic as the change in the perception and status of LGBT people. Our sources include activists' testimonies and LGBT rights promotional materials, media reports, personal accounts and creative productions. We will locate these sources in their historical contexts and examine how - and to what extent – Irish LGBT issues have been analysed by historians. Among the topics for module discussion: accessing and interpreting the LGBT past; representations of LGBT identities in the media and the arts; narrating and interpreting the LGBT rights struggle in Ireland.

Aoife Breathnach, Becoming Conspicuous: Irish Travellers, Society and the State 1922-70 (University College Dublin Press, Dublin, 2006).

Dr Oisín Wall

As Ireland's only indigenous ethnic minority, Travellers have played an integral part of Irish history. However, there has been almost no academic history written about the community. Becoming Conspicuous was the first book on Travellers' history in Ireland. Through this book, the case study will explore the limited literature on Traveller History in Ireland and will ask why so little has been written and what might be done to address that.

J.B. Bury, History of the Papacy in the 19th century. Liberty and authority in the Catholic Church (Macmillan, London, 1930)

Dr Gordon Warren

'This case study focuses on the work of a very prominent Irish medieval historian, J.B. Bury, with particular reference to one of his most significant works of modern history, that sought to depict the background to the declaration of the doctrine of Papal Infallibility in 1870. It will discuss Bury's general historical views, the position of the work in question within the context of his broader writings, and the extent to which the book has influenced subsequent scholarship on the question.'

Registration of Case Studies (HI2105)

The structure of second year in general, and of the Case Study in particular, will be discussed in the first lecture of the core survey module HI2110 (Sex, Gender and Power in History). That lecture occurs in BOOLE 2 from 2 - 3 pm on Tuesday, 09 September 2025.

The registration process for the Case Studies (all of which take place in second semester) will be explained in this class, but the registration itself will not take place until later in first semester, on a date to be confirmed in due course.

Options

Options are designed to give students an opportunity to look in depth at different facets of social, cultural, and political history over a period by focusing on various aspects already introduced in the core survey courses:

- Joint honours students choose four
- Single honours students choose six
- Major students choose four 10-credit
- Minor students choose one
- Students taking 20 credits choose two

Second Year Options 2025-2026

HI2003 Culture and Power: Renaissance Intellectual History 1450-1650 (Sem 2)

Dr Hiram Morgan

This module seeks a deeper insight into the Renaissance and Reformation period by looking at examples of art, literature, architecture, music and science. Topics include: the iconography of piety; the new information technology of printing (which facilitated not only diffusion of knowledge but also questioning of received knowledge); new learning and new theologies; the similarities in the Protestant and Catholic Reformations (attacking popular culture, enforcing social control, domesticating women); the consolidation of ancien régimes.

(Examined by 1½ hr exam in Summer 2026: (80 marks); 1,500 mid-term assessment (20 marks) to be submitted on a date prescribed by the School.)

HI2022 The History of the Media in Ireland (Sem 2)

Dr Finola Doyle-O'Neill

This module explores the history of the print media, the development of local radio and the evolution of a national television station. This module will develop an analysis of the relationships of these different media with the political and social institutions of our time, and the implications of these relationships for modern Ireland.

(Examined by 1½ hr exam in Summer 2026: (80 marks); 1,500 mid-term Book Review assessment (20 marks), to be submitted on a date prescribed by the School.)

HI2025 The Vikings (Sem 1)

Mr John Ware

The general history of the Vikings outside their Scandinavian homeland and especially their activities in the West; the impact of the Vikings on Britain and Ireland; the political and economic results of that impact, and the consequence of cultural interaction between the Vikings and their hosts, especially in the later Viking period.

(Examined by 1½ hr exam Winter 2025 (80 marks); 1,500-word essay (20 marks), to be submitted on a date prescribed by the School.)

HI2031 Ireland and Rome: History, Culture, and Contact (Sem 1 & 2)

Dr Damian Bracken

Using textual and visual sources and a study-visit to the city itself, this course will investigate the key elements and turning points in Rome's history as a cultural, political and spiritual world-capital. It will examine Rome's impact on the wider world and in particular consider its relationship with Ireland.

(Examined by 1 x Oral in situ presentation on study tour (50 Marks); 3000-word essay (50 marks), to be completed on a date prescribed by the School.)

HI2036 Sport and Society in Modern Ireland (Sem 2)

Dr Donal McAnallen

This module investigates the evolution of sporting practices and organisations in Ireland from the second half of the nineteenth century to date. It focusses in particular (but not exclusively) on the major sporting codes on the island, with special emphasis upon their structures of governance, evolution in playing styles, and their social, political, cultural and economic ethos, placing these developments within the context of wider changes in Irish society.

(Examined by 1½ hr exam in Summer 2026: (80 marks); 1,500 Book Review (20 marks) to be submitted on a date prescribed by the School.)

HI2038 The Tudors and Ireland (Sem 1)

Dr David Edwards

This module examines the various ways in which the Tudor and Early Stuart monarchs attempted to incorporate Ireland into a more centralised English state, experimenting with strategies of aristocratic 'self rule', administrative reform, colonisation, military occupation, and conquest. Special emphasis will be placed on Ireland as a security problem in English foreign policy, and how this was exacerbated first by ethnic and cultural differences (English Vs Gaelic) and later by religious discord (Protestant Vs Catholic).

(Examined by 1½ hr exam in Winter 2025 (80 marks); 1,500-word essay (20 marks) to be submitted on a date prescribed by the School.)

HI2041 US Foreign Policy and the Cold War, 1943-1991(Sem 2)

Prof David Ryan

The module will examine the formation of US foreign policy from the origins of the Cold War through to the fall of the Berlin Wall and the collapse of the Soviet Union. It will examine the division of Europe and the superpower diplomacy that attended the bipolar configuration of power. It will also examine the formation of alliances from the Rio Pact, NATO and SEATO. It will study the evolution of the Cold War from the European centre out towards the Third World.

(Examined by 1 x 3,000-word Essay (70 marks); 1 x 2,000-word Document Analysis (30 marks); both assignments to be submitted on dates prescribed by the School.)

HI2044 Crime and Media in Ireland (Sem 2)

Dr Finola Doyle-O'Neill

Newspaper reportage of crime-' if it bleeds- it leads-: the broadcast media and emotive reporting; the role of the Garda Press Office; the history of the Criminal Assets Bureau: US and Irish TV Crime dramas; Missing Persons reportage; Media portrayal of the female offender; Media ownership and white collar/blue collar crime.; the rise of the crime correspondent in both the print and broadcast media.

(Examined by 1½ hr exam in Summer 2026: (80 marks); 1,500-word essay (20 marks), to be submitted on a date prescribed by the School.)

HI2045 Crime, Violence, and Revolutionary Ireland, 1913-1925 (Sem 2)

Dr John Borgonovo

Ireland experienced a judiciary and policing vacuum during the revolutionary period. This course examines the collapse of the British police and court systems and attempts by the IRA and Irish Free State to replace them. Different manifestations of the breakdown of law and order will be studied, such as land seizures, rural terrorism, sectarian violence, armed robberies, labour strife, sexual violence, and urban crime.

(Examined by 1 x 1,500-word essay (30 marks); 1 x 3,000-word essay (70 marks); both assignments to be submitted on dates prescribed by the School.)

HI2046 Policing and Popular Justice in Ireland, 1803-1940 (Sem 2)

Dr John Borgonovo

This course investigates community policing by state and non-state forces in both pre and post-independence Ireland. Government policing is compared with different forms of 'people's justice' visible during the same period. These include agrarianism, vigilantism, boycotts and other violent and non-violent expressions. It also explores different manifestations of social control, including such areas as alcohol consumption, schooling, sexual relations, and parenting.

(Examined by 1 x 1,500-word essay (30 marks); 1 x 3,000-word essay (70 marks); both essays to be submitted on dates prescribed by the School.)

HI2048 1989 Revolutions: Poland and East Central Europe - Transition to Democracy (Sem 2)

Dr Bozena Cierlik

The module will examine the process of transition from communism to democracy in East Central Europe and the global significance of the 1989 revolutions. It will provide analysis of the core issues that shaped the region's politics: regime change, creation of civil society, economic reforms and the changing nature of the post-communist system.

(Examined by 1 x 3,000-word essay (70 marks); 1 x 1,500 word document analysis (30 marks); both assignments to be submitted on dates prescribed by the School.)

HI2049 The Great Famine: its Making, Meaning and Memory (Sem 1)

Dr Jay Roszman

Arguably, no events had a greater impact on Irish history than the Great Famine. This module explores the social and economic conditions that led to famine, the way the Famine unfolded in Ireland, state and individual responses to the crisis, the experience of eviction and emigration, and the way the Famine's memory shaped Irish identity and nationalism in the latter half of the nineteenth century.

(Examined by 1½ hr exam in Winter 2025 (50 marks); 1 x 1,250-word Primary Source Analysis (25 marks); 3 x 500-word Reading Responses (25 marks); all assignments to be submitted on dates prescribed by the School.)

HI2050 History of the Irish Family (Sem 2)

Dr Maeve O'Riordan

Second-year students will engage with the theory and practice of writing the history of the family. Topics will include: the life-cycle, the state and the family, and the history of emotions.

(Examined by 1 x 2,000-word written portfolio assignment (50 marks); 1 x Group Project (50 marks); both assignments to be submitted on dates prescribed by the School.)

HI2051 The First World War, 1914-1918; International Relations, Politics and Society (Sem 1)

Dr Jérôme aan De Wiel

This course looks at the First World War and explores a variety of angles to convey a mature comprehension of a conflict that radically changed the course of the twentieth century, the effects of which are still felt today. It introduces the students to some of the ongoing historiographical debates.

(Examined by 1½ hr exam in Winter 2025 (70 marks); 2,000-word essay (30 marks) to be submitted on a date prescribed by the School of History.)

HI2103 The long nineteenth century: Europe, Ireland and the Wider World II (Sem 2)

The course will survey the major developments in modern history from the American and French Revolutions through the major changes in politics and society in the Nineteenth Century.

(Examined by 1 x 2,000-word essay (30 marks); 1 x In-class Test - 48-Hour take-home-exam (THE) (70 marks); both assignments to be submitted on dates prescribed by the School.)

HI2204 From Bretton Woods to Neoliberal Globalization. The History of the Global Economic Order Since 1944 (Sem 2)

Dr Jonas Kreienbaum

When delegations from 44 Allied Nations met at Bretton Woods in July 1944 to discuss the rules of the future global economic and financial order, many regions of the world were underrepresented (or not represented at all) because they were still part of Western colonial empires. Soon socialist states opted out of the Bretton Woods order establishing their own economic and trading system.

HI2104: Special Research Project

All second-year Single-honours and 40-credit Major students must complete a 5,000-word, supervised project, worth 5 credits. You may choose your supervisor from among History staff, subject to availability, suitability and a maximum number of projects per supervisor.

You will select your topic in consultation with your supervisor. Written approval of the title by the supervisor will be required before the project can be marked. Students will maintain regular contact with their supervisor when doing their research project.

Dr Andrew McCarthy (a.mccarthy@ucc.ie) will coordinate arrangements for HI2104 via Canvas and email. He will pre-record a Panopto video for Canvas explaining the Special Research Project and how to progress it. That will be in the Canvas Module from early September. From 1 to 2 pm on Thursday, 18 September 2025, in BHSC_G05 there will be an advisory session with Questions and Answers. It will cover much of the same ground as the introductory video, with opportunity for students to raise questions.

One-to-One MS Teams Meetings can be facilitated by arrangement for students who cannot attend Campus.

Your project title, duly approved by your supervisor, must be registered online via Canvas upload before 11.59 pm, Friday, 17 October 2025. You will submit a draft of the project to your supervisor (via email) by 11.59 pm, Friday, 23 January 2026, and arrange to meet for formal feedback. Your completed project will be submitted in typescript to Canvas before 11.59 pm, Friday, 6 March 2026.

PX3001

PROFESSIONAL WORK EXPERIENCE

PX3001 is an accredited professional work experience module that allows CACSSS students to explore and develop their career interests.

This optional module can be taken in any year of your undergraduate degree, prior to the second semester of your final year.

Preparatory training is provided, including advice and guidance on CV writing and interview skills workshops. Students that successfully complete PX3001 will have an extra 5 credits awarded to them as a diploma supplement outside of their degree. Participating in and completing PX3001 will mean that you will be better prepared for the transition to the workplace when you graduate your degree.

For further information, please contact the PX3001 Manager, Amy McMullan: amy.mcmullan@ucc.ie

Third Year

Year Coordinator:

Dr John Borgonovo j.borgonovo@ucc.ie

3rd Year Timetable + Useful Information:

<https://www.ucc.ie/en/history/undergraduate/thirdyearhistory/>

Dublin tenement residents, 1901

The Third Year programme is designed to bring students' historical understanding, knowledge and skills to a higher level, building on the foundations laid in First and Second Year.

The Seminar, HI3200, is the core module for Third Year and offers students the opportunity to undertake a significant piece of research and writing in the context of skill-based, small-group learning.

Similar to the seminar, our range of 10-credit options are designed to allow students to work in smaller groups and to spend more time exploring particular topics. These classes will involve more active learning and a wider variety of assessments and will typically consist of one lecture per week and one seminar. To ensure that these classes can run effectively, numbers in each of them will be capped, with a maximum of 23 students in each class.

Finally, the wide range of 5-credit options available gives you the freedom to shape your final year's work to suit your individual interests.

NOTE: All third-year Single-honours and 40-credit Major students must complete HI3302 Special Research Project.

Assignment Submission Dates:

HI3200: Draft seminar dissertations to be emailed to relevant lecturer by 11.59 pm, Monday, 16 March 2026.

HI3200: Final Seminar dissertation to be submitted online to Canvas by 11.59 pm, Wednesday 22 April 2026.

HI3302: 1 x 5000-word Supervised Project on an agreed topic; draft to be submitted by 11.59 pm, Friday, 23 January 2026 and completed project will be submitted in typescript to Canvas by 11.59 pm Friday, 6 March 2026.

HI3200 Seminars –

All Single, Major, Joint, and 20-credit students must take one seminar from those on offer. The topics of the seminars are described below and the 8,000-word dissertation to be presented must be related to the subjects discussed in the seminars. The choice of subject for the dissertation must be made with the agreement of the relevant lecturer(s). Assessment is by an in-class oral presentation and your dissertation It is obligatory to (a) attend at least two-thirds of scheduled seminar classes and (b) give an oral presentation to the class on the research project. Both of these requirements are a pre-requisite for the submission and marking of the seminar dissertation. Students who fail to fulfil either of these requirements will be required to repeat the assessment in the autumn with their overall mark capped at 40%. If you are contemplating undertaking postgraduate research, the result awarded for this seminar module will be deemed especially important when deciding your suitability for admission to any postgraduate programme or research work.

Seminar Allocation

Student numbers in each of the seminars are limited, with equal numbers in each. Places are allocated on the basis of the best fit between student preferences and the number of available slots, although single honours students and those with 1st class History honours from Second Year will be given priority, where possible. Some ex-quota places may be reserved for visiting students in at least the third year of their degree.

HI3200 Seminar Registrations will be online via Seminar Registration App accessible in Canvas-HI3200 Homepage from Friday 5 September 2025. All students are expected to register their class choices by 4pm Thursday 11 September 2025. The Third Year Coordinator, Dr John Borgonovo, and HI3200 Canvas Coordinator, Andrew McCarthy, will convene an introductory session for all seminar students on Monday, 8 September, 1.15-1.45pm, BHSC_G01 (Brookfield). This session will introduce the seminar and demonstrate the App for class selections.

In addition, from 1 September 2025, a Seminar Handbook and Introductory Video will be accessible from the HI3200 Canvas Homepage. These will also explain how the App is used to make seminar class selections. The Online App will be available from 5 September until cutoff at 4pm on 11 September. After that cutoff, students registering for seminar classes must submit a registration form to Ms Colette Pettit c.pettit@ucc.ie: this form will be available from 4pm 11 September 2023. For these late registrations, students will be allocated to classes on numbers basis rather than student choice.

Seminar Assessment

The student must make an in-class oral presentation and complete and present an 8,000-word, typewritten dissertation on a research topic that has been agreed in advance with the relevant lecturer. It is obligatory to (a) attend at least two-thirds of scheduled seminar classes and (b) give an oral presentation to the class on the research project. Both of these requirements are a pre-requisite for the marking of the seminar dissertation. 20% of the final mark is awarded for participation in the seminar. 80% of the final mark is awarded for the dissertation.

HI3200 Submission dates:

HI3200: Draft seminar dissertations to be emailed to relevant lecturer by 11.59 pm, Monday, 16 March 2026.

HI3200: Final Seminar dissertation to be submitted online to Canvas by 11.59 pm, Wednesday, 22 April 2026.

Seminar Topics, 2025-26

War and Revolution in Cork 1914-1923

Dr John Borgonovo & Dr John Dorney

The period of 1914-1923 produced upheaval in Ireland generally and Cork specifically. This seminar will examine how county residents experienced the First World War, the 1916 Easter Rising, the Conscription Crisis, the War of Independence, and Irish Civil War. It will discuss many of the events in Cork which have produced major debates in the literature of revolutionary Ireland. Using the case study of a single county, this seminar will deploy an inter-disciplinary focus and perspectives from local history, social history, economic history, military history and political history.

Gender, Medicine and the State in Ireland 1837-1951

Prof Ciara Breathnach

This seminar will provide students with an introduction to major issues, approaches and sources pertaining to the social history of medicine and medicalisation in Ireland from the foundation of the poor law to the aftermath of the 'Mother and Child' debacle in the 1950s. We will discuss plurality in the medical marketplace and the competing influences of traditional medicinal practitioners. Using an array of primary sources from institutions like poor law union hospitals, psychiatric hospitals, coroner's courts and prisons we will examine the extent of Irish medico-legal literacy and how people engaged with 'western medicine' from a gendered perspective.

God's Playground or the World's Headache? History of Poland from 1918

Dr Bozena Cierlik

The aim of this seminar is to explore social, economic, cultural, institutional, military, personal and dynamic political factors which are pertinent to understand history of modern Poland.

For much of the modern history Poles asked themselves how Poland could be restored to its former independent condition and more importantly what kind of country Poland ought to be. The first question was answered by the outcome of WWI and WWII but the second question still remains. The seminar will examine Poland's political transformation from the time of the re-emergence of the independent state in 1918, through to the Second World War, the communist period and the transition to pluralism. It will discuss the role of external influences and of foreign powers in this process. A selection of primary sources as well as visual material will be used to explore different themes in Polish history.

Murder and Intrigue in Sixteenth-Century Ireland

Dr David Edwards

Historical research is all about detective work. This seminar investigates the history of Renaissance and Early Modern Ireland (1450 to 1640) through a series of mysteries that have troubled historians for a long time. Examining episodes of assassination and massacre, forgery and theft, it will challenge students to solve the puzzles by scrutinising the surviving documentary evidence. In the process, the seminar will reveal much about the political and social realities of 15th-, 16th- and early 17th-century Ireland, as the case studies touch upon a wide range of issues - from sex and family life to class and status, from crime and punishment to warfare and diplomacy.

'The pursuit of happiness?': A history of rights and liberties in the United States since 1945.

Dr Clodagh Harrington

'Life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness' was the founding creed of the American republic, involving a set of principles as inspirational as they were progressive. For some, this vision became a reality, but in many cases, the political, social and economic security that necessitates the quest for happiness has arguably not always been provided by the government. This seminar series will explore the struggles for equality in the modern (post World-War Two) United States. Each week, students will engage with a specific civil rights or liberties related theme, using the US constitution along with legal and judicial precedent for scholarly context.

With topics including racial justice, reproductive rights, income inequality, incarceration, gay marriage, immigration, gun ownership and more, classes will support students as they analyse and interpret content, material and themes relating to these crucial components of American political, social and cultural history.

Primary and secondary materials will be utilised and seminars will be interactive, with a specific focus on assisting students with their particular areas of research interest. Relevant methodologies will be discussed and considered in relation to individual requirements. Dissertation good practice will be embedded throughout.

Sex and Gender in Renaissance Italy

Dr Jason Harris

It seems that everywhere one looks in fifteenth and sixteenth century Italy there are references to sex – from rumours of incest and orgies at the Vatican to wild fantasies of sex with witches and demons; from sermons and court trials aimed at eradicating ‘sodomy’ to art and literature that seems to challenge gender norms and articulate a great variety of sexual tastes. Why do sex and gender feature so prominently in renaissance sources? How much do these sources tell us about what was really going on in people’s private lives? In this module we will examine how classical humanists fought a culture war with religious reformers over the social roles of men and women, over the moral value of sex and pleasure, and over the freedom to depict the body and human nature in diverse and challenging ways. Students will therefore use a wide array of different kinds of primary source material to explore how sex, gender and sexuality were understood and represented in renaissance Italy, and how this developed over time in response to underlying social and religious changes.

Society, Art & Religion in Late Medieval Ireland.

Dr Małgorzata Krasnodebska - D'Aughton
 The seminar looks at the relationships between social and religious structures in late medieval Ireland and the visualisation of these relationships in public architecture, manuscripts and personal artefacts. The seminar covers a wide range of topics: racial tensions, social mores and the Church, space and society, gender and models of sanctity, death and commemoration, public and private devotion, travel and inter-cultural encounters. By focusing on the international religious orders of the mendicants, the seminar explores these topics in a wider European context. The seminar consists of class-based sessions and a visit to Special Collections.

Introduction to Byzantine History: Identity, Power and Continuity

Dr Lusine Margaryan

This course explores the key developments in Byzantine history from the reign of Constantine the Great to the fall of Constantinople in 1453. A central focus will be the evolving identity of the empire's inhabitants, who saw themselves not as "Byzantines" but as Romans, heirs to ancient Rome. Students will examine how this Roman-Christian identity was shaped by political continuity, cultural transformation, and Orthodox Christianity. While theological debates will be touched upon, greater emphasis will be placed on the political role of religion and the institutional power of the Church. Key themes include imperial rule, military change, religious policy, cultural revival, and the role of women in power.

Shakespeare's World: State, society and empire under Elizabeth and James, 1558-1625

Dr Hiram Morgan

This seminar will look at England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales in the reigns of Elizabeth and James and the remarkable changes that took place. Using primary sources, it will examine the economic impact of the Dissolution of the Monasteries, the consolidation of the Protestant Reformation, the execution of Mary Queen of Scots and the union of Crowns, the twists and turns of war and foreign policies involving continental Europe, the plantations in Ireland and the New World, the development of London and the expansion of overseas trade.

Covering the careers of the monarchs themselves, this course provides plenty of scope for dissertations on a variety of subjects.

Radical Politics in 20th-Century Ireland

Dr Donal O'Driscoile

This seminar examines a variety of radical political ideas, movements and individuals that have challenged the status quo in Ireland, from the radical ferment of the first decades of the century to the conservative consensus of the 1990s. As well as addressing core questions - such as the reasons for the failure of the Irish left, the conservatism of Irish political culture, and the persistence of militant republicanism – it will also explore the often-colourful history of radical groups and currents from across the political spectrum.

The Irish Diaspora in Comparative Perspective

Mr Rory O'Dwyer

Irish emigration to the USA, Britain and the British Empire will be considered from the perspective of social, economic, political, and cultural history. The causes and consequences of emigration will be examined in an Irish context and in each of the major destination countries.

There will be a focus on various topics, such as newspapers and the diaspora, Famine emigration, the industrial migrant experience, Irish missionary activity, the military tradition, sport and the diaspora etc. The Irish emigrant experience in other lesser known destinations will also be explored where there is good research potential. Students will be encouraged to avail of the excellent resources for a diaspora study within the Special Collections Library in UCC, along with other valuable archival centres and on-line resources. The period mainly covered in the course will be the nineteenth and twentieth centuries.

Gerald of Wales: Inventing Barbarian Ireland.

Dr Diarmuid Scully

Gerald of Wales's Topography of Ireland (1188) is perhaps the single most controversial book ever written about Ireland. It was the first full-length work written by a foreigner about the island and its geography, flora and fauna, miracles, marvels, inhabitants, history, and culture. Gerald was an advocate of the English conquest and colonisation of Ireland, which he described in his Conquest of Ireland (1189). He depicts the Irish as wild, primitive barbarians living at the ends of the earth: violent, treacherous and sexually deviant, but intelligent and handsome too. Gerald presents Ireland as a land of wonders: human wolves, haunted islands, and magic wells are among the marvels found in his narrative. We will analyse the Topography within the contexts of colonialism and fantasies of remote places, ethnic and gender stereotyping, and beliefs concerning the natural world and the supernatural. We will also explore the interaction between text and image in lavishly illustrated medieval manuscripts of the Topography and Conquest, now digitised and accessible online.

Third Year Options

The Rules

The options on offer for 2025/2026 are listed below. Some are taken in Semester 1 and some in Semester 2. There are conditions regulating students' choice of options, i.e. the number of options you must choose in each Semester.

Single honours students take at least two options in Semester 1 and take at least two options in Semester 2.

Major honours students take four options. At least one option must be taken in Semester 1 and at least one option in Semester 2.

Joint honours students take three options. At least one option must be taken in each Semester.

20-credit students take one 10 credit or two 5 credit options. Students also take the core (10 credits).

10-credit students take one 10 credit or two 5 credit options.

It is vital that students be aware of these rules before making and registering their choices.

Students should also ensure their choice of options is accurately registered on the MyStudentAdmin portal before Friday 19 September 2025.. Check the Confirmation of Registration screen to ensure that your registration is correct.

Option Assessment Requirements

There are varying methods of assessment of each module. Please ensure to read the details.

Availability of Options: Not all options listed in the College Calendar may be available in any given year. Please check carefully the detailed lists for 2025/2026 below and any subsequent announcements posted on departmental notice boards.

Option Timing: All options are taught within a single semester. Semester 1 begins in September and Semester 2 begins in January. The listing below tells you when each option begins.

HI2046 Policing and Popular Justice in Ireland, 1803-1940 (5 credits) (Sem 2)

Dr John Borgonovo

This course investigates community policing by state and non-state forces in both pre and post-independence Ireland. Government policing is compared with different forms of 'people's justice' visible during the same period.

(Examined by 1 x 1,500-word essay (30 marks); 1 x 3,000-word essay (70 marks); both essays to be submitted on dates prescribed by the School.)

HI2204 From Bretton Woods to Neoliberal Globalization. The History of the Global Economic Order Since 1944 (Sem 2)

Dr Jonas Kreienbaum

When delegations from 44 Allied Nations met at Bretton Woods in July 1944 to discuss the rules of the future global economic and financial order, many regions of the world were underrepresented (or not represented at all) because they were still part of Western colonial empires. Soon socialist states opted out of the Bretton Woods order establishing their own economic and trading system.

HI3043 Politics, Society and the Irish Novel: from union to independence (5 credits) (Sem 2)

Mr Rory O'Dwyer

Major Irish writers from union to independence. This module examines novels as historical sources, as well as the social, political and cultural contexts in which they were written. It explores the influences on and objectives of novelists, taking into account intended audiences and readers' reactions.

(Examined by 1½ hr exam in Summer 2026: 80 marks; 1 x 1,500-word essay to be submitted on a date prescribed by the School: 20 marks)

HI3052 From Pagans to Christians (5 credits) (Sem 2)

Dr Damian Bracken

The emergence of Christianity as the religion of early medieval Europe is one of the most significant events in Western civilisation. This module examines reasons put forward for its success, contemporary attitudes to its development and attempts to bridge the gap between the pagan and the Christian. The module will examine how Christianity, moving from its base in the Mediterranean, encountered and won over other societies. (Examined by 1 x 1,500-word essay (20 marks); 1 x 4,000 word essay (80 marks); assignments to be submitted on dates prescribed by the School.)

HI3082 Armadas: The Anglo-Spanish Conflict 1585-1604 (5 credits) (Sem 2)

Dr Hiram Morgan

Using a mix of primary and secondary sources this module examines the causes, course and conclusion of the wars between Elizabeth I and Philip of Spain. The Spanish campaign in the Netherlands and English interference in the Indies will be considered as the main causes of conflict.

(Examined by 1½ hr exam in Summer 2026 (80 marks); 1 x 1,500-word primary source analysis (20 marks), to be submitted on a date prescribed by the School.)

HI3125 Nuclear Politics and Proliferation (5 credits) (Sem 2)
Dr Mervyn O'Driscoll

The concept of the 'First' and 'Second' nuclear ages are introduced in addition to questions about proliferation's impact on world security, crisis decision making, the bombing of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, deterrence, arms control, civil-military nuclear links, the non-proliferation regime, nuclear safeguards, and 'new' nuclear threats (smuggling and terrorism). Recent and contemporary case studies such as Iraq, Iran and North Korea will be considered.

(Examined by 1½ hr exam in Summer 2026 (70 marks); 1 x 1,500-word essay (30 marks) to be submitted on a date prescribed by the School.)

HI3128 Censorship in Twentieth-Century Ireland (5 credits) (Sem 2)

Dr Donal O Drisceoil

This course examines key themes and events in the history of twentieth-century Irish censorship, from 1900 to independence and partition, and in the two Irish states after 1922. It covers the two main strands of censorship - cultural/moral and political/security - as they have related to literature and periodicals; film and theatre; and newspapers, radio and television.

(Examined by 1 x 1,500 word essay (20 marks); 1 x 4,000 word essay (80 marks), both essays to be submitted on dates prescribed by the School.)

HI3129 US Military Intervention and Memory after the Vietnam War (1975-2017) (5 credits) (Sem 2)
Prof David Ryan

The Vietnam War had a profound impact on US society, culture and foreign policy. The course will examine the impact of the Vietnam War on US intervention in regional conflicts since 1968, including the US interventions in Iraq and Afghanistan.
(Examined by 1 x 3,000 word essay (60 marks); 1 x 2,000 word essay (40 marks); both assignments to be submitted on dates prescribed by the School.)

ES4027 Capitalism, Communism and the Cold War: East and West Germany, 1945-1990 (5 credits) (Sem 2)

Dr Detmar Klein & Dr Jerome aan de Wiel

The module examines the formation and development of the two German states between 1945 and 1990, with a particular focus on their ideological characteristics. Relations between state and citizen, with their components of state supervision, conformism, protest and counter-culture, will be studied.

(Examined by 1½ hr exam in Summer 2026 (70 marks); 1 x 1,500-word critique/analysis of primary sources (30 marks); to be submitted on a date prescribed by the School.)

ES4029 The EU Periphery: Minority Issues, Nationalism and Identity Politics (5 credits) (Sem 2)
Dr Jérôme aan de Wiel

The module explores fundamental issues concerning Minority Issues, Nationalism and Identity Politics in the EU periphery. Case Studies familiarise students with relevant contemporary challenges.

(Examined by 1½ hr exam in Summer 2026 (70 marks); 1 x 1,500-word essay (30 marks); to be submitted on a date prescribed by the School.)

HI3302: Special Research Project

All Third-year Single-honours and 40-credit Major students must complete a 5,000-word, supervised Project worth 5 credits. You may choose your supervisor, subject to suitability, availability and a maximum number of projects per supervisor. You must select your topic in consultation with your supervisor. There has to be written approval of the title before the project can be marked.

Dr Andrew McCarthy (a.mccarthy@ucc.ie) will coordinate arrangements for HI3302 via Canvas and email. He will pre-record a Panopto video for Canvas explaining the Special Research Project and how to progress it. That will be in the Canvas Module from early September. From 1 pm - 2 pm on Thursday, 18 September 2025, in BHSC_G05, there will be an advisory session with Questions and Answers. It will cover much of the same ground as the introductory video, with opportunity for students to raise questions.

One-to-One MS Teams Meetings can be facilitated by arrangement for students who cannot attend Campus.

Your project title, duly approved by your supervisor, must be registered online via Canvas upload before 11.59 pm, Friday, 17 October 2025. You will submit a draft of the project to your supervisor (via email) by 11.59 pm, Friday, 23 January 2026, and arrange to meet for formal feedback. Your completed project will be submitted in typescript to Canvas before 11.59 pm, Friday, 6 March 2026.

Visiting Students

Visiting students attending the School of History or European Studies may contact Katherine McGarry (k.mcgarry@ucc.ie) with any queries or concerns related to the Semester or Year Abroad.

Choice of Modules

Visiting Students who wish to select a HI2105 Case Study and/or a HI3200 Research Seminar should note the following:

HI2105 - The structure of second year in general, and of the Case Study in particular, will be discussed in the first lecture of the core survey module HI2110 in BOOLE_2 from 2 - 3 pm on Tuesday, 09 September 2025. (see page 20 for further details)

HI3200 - HI3200 Seminar Registrations will be online via Seminar Registration App accessible in Canvas-HI3200 Homepage from Monday 1 September 2025 (see page 30 for further details).

Visiting students and their choices are subject to all the usual conditions regulating the modules which they attend (see the relevant sections of this Handbook).

1922-23; aspects of modern Ireland since independence; Northern Ireland Troubles, 1969-94; food, society and identity in nineteenth- and twentieth-century Ireland. (Examined by 1 x 1,500-word assignment (50 Marks); 1 x Assignment - Take-home exam (50 Marks); to be submitted on dates prescribed by the School.)

Professor Mary Ryan, UCC (1909-1939).

Academic Misconduct

Generative AI/LLMs:

In accordance with UCC's Academic Integrity Policy, the School of History has chosen to completely prohibit the use of Generative AI/LLMs for any assessed work. Generative AI/LLMs (e.g. ChatGPT, Copilot, Gemini) are unable to 'think', 'reason', or 'know' information and instead rely on algorithms to predict language. They often fabricate information that is complete inaccurate and unreliable. The use of Generative AI/LLMs to complete coursework also robs students of the ability to strengthen skills that assessments are meant to develop: critical thinking, reasoning, and clear communication.

Any suspected use of Generative AI/LLMs will be referred to the School of History's Academic Integrity Office for review.

Plagiarism:

The School of History treats Plagiarism as a grave offence, and it will penalise it accordingly.

UCC Policy states:

Plagiarism is the presentation of someone else's work as your own without appropriate attribution. Whether done deliberately or inadvertently, it is unacceptable, since it is an attempt to claim credit for work not done by you and fails to give credit for the work of others. Plagiarism also includes material derived from Generative AI/LLMs. Plagiarism applies not just to text, but to graphics, tables, formulae, or any representation of ideas in print, electronic or any other media, in addition to computer software and algorithms. Whether deliberate or inadvertent, as in the case of carelessness or poor academic discipline, plagiarism undermines scholarship, is a form of academic misconduct, and conflicts with the ethos of the University. The University takes any form of plagiarism very seriously; it is subject to disciplinary procedures.

The School will investigate and apply penalties and sanctions on all student work suspected of Plagiarism. Serious cases of Plagiarism will be reported to the Exams Office, and the judgement of Plagiarism may be recorded on your record. Therefore, it is in your interests to familiarise yourself thoroughly with what Plagiarism is. Consult with the relevant policies and discuss the matter with your lecturers and tutors in advance of submissions to avoid problems.

The School has an Academic Integrity Officer, Dr Jay Roszman (jay.roszman@ucc.ie), whose role is to implement the policy.

Repeat Students

Students are advised to consult the College Calendar and the Book of Modules for details of specific regulations relating to repeating examinations and/or modules. Students are advised that the provision of any non-compulsory module in a particular session cannot be guaranteed. Examinations will not be set in modules that are not on offer in the year.

All work for the deadlines listed must be submitted online to Canvas where they will be checked by Turnitin.

All other students who are required to submit module work or assessments as part of the requirements for repeating modules in the autumn must submit such work by a deadline to be prescribed by the School.

Third-Year students who fail or do not submit the option assessment must submit an assessment essay on a title assigned by the relevant lecturer by a deadline to be prescribed by the School.

Students who fail their dissertation must submit a revised version by a deadline to be prescribed by the School.

Students permitted to defer the submission of a dissertation on medical grounds must submit the deferred dissertation by a deadline to be specified by the School. This deadline may be modified only on production of a further medical certificate. Students may submit work or sit examinations only in options for which they are registered with the School of History.

Students with Special Needs

The School of History's liaison person with the Disability Support Office is Dr Detmar Klein.

Students who are not registered with Disability Support are welcome to contact him by e-mail at d.klein@ucc.ie.

Postgraduate Studies

UCC is a very active centre of graduate research in History. The School of History offers programmes and modules of study leading to MA, MPhil and PhD degrees. Further information, application procedures and regulations are available on the School of History's website: <https://www.ucc.ie/en/history/graduatestudies/>. Applicants should also read the College Calendar issued for their year of application.
