Conference Attended:

The British Maternal and Fetal Medicine Society
Annual Conference, Brighton, 19th & 20th April 2018

I attended the annual BMFMS conference last week in Brighton. It was an excellent opportunity to present two posters on my research to date on Placental Growth Factor to an international audience. It allowed me to gain valuable feedback and advice from those experienced in this field of obstetrics which will be a big asset going forward in my writing and presentation on the topic and overall to my PhD.

In addition, interactive educational sessions at the conference allowed me to improve my clinical obstetric skills while plenary sessions updated me on the current topical research in the field of obstetrics.

I would sincerely like to thank the College of Medicine and Health UCC for facilitating this excellent learning opportunity.
