Conference Attended: Alzheimer's Association International Conference 2017. July 14-20, London, UK

As a recipient of the College of Medicine and Health doctoral travel bursary, I was grateful of the opportunity to present my research at the Alzheimer's Association International Conference in London.

The AAIC 2017 conference was the largest dementia research conference in the world to date, with over 5600 delegates present. I attended many plenary sessions, symposia and viewed many posters over the course of the week. As a result, I believe that my understanding of dementia has vastly improved.

Furthermore, this conference allowed me to present my research to an interested audience, therefore maximising dissemination of my research, as well as fostering future collaborations.

Many thanks again to the College of Medicine and Health for this bursary.
