Conference Attended:

2nd Congress of joint European Neonatal Societies (jENS) in Venice, Italy. October 31st-November 4th, 2017

My research is focused on blood-based biomarkers in the newborn, and with the help of the college of medicine and health travel bursary, I was able to travel to Venice, Italy and attend the 2nd Congress of joint European Neonatal Societies. I presented the main chapter for my upcoming thesis to experts in the area, and got some fantastic feedback, along with the opportunity to network with the experts in the field. By attending this conference, I was given to the opportunity to both grow as a researcher and also showcase the work carried out within the college of medicine and health. I'd like to thank CoMH for the opportunity.
