Conference Attended: ConsEuro 2015 Conference, Location: London, 14 – 16 May 2015

Thanks to receiving a College of Medicine and Health doctoral student travel bursary, I was able to attend the ConsEuro 2015 Conference in London. This is one of the largest restorative dentistry conferences and is held biannually.

Attending this conference gave me valuable experience presenting to an audience of highly respected academics in dental research. This conference also allowed me to see the latest developments and theories in the area of root caries and I met with researchers working in similar areas to my own.

As this data will form part of my thesis it also gave me the opportunity to experience some peer review from leading academics in my area of research prior to my viva.
