

RAMINDER SINGH
School of Medicine

Conference Attended:

EMBO | EMBL Symposium: Innate immunity in host-pathogen, EMBL Heidelberg, Germany. 17th-20th July 2022

I am extremely grateful to the College of Medicine and Health for giving me the financial support to attend EMBO | EMBL Symposium: Innate immunity in host-pathogen, 2022. The meeting's focus was to bring together researchers in the areas of immunology and microbiology to gain a better understanding of host-microbe interaction. As a final year student, attendance to this meeting gave me the opportunity to learn about cutting edge technologies and research, to disseminate my current research findings, to gain feedback from world-known researchers in the host-microbiome research field, and to interact with my peers. This experience will help improve my work in advance of publications, in writing up my doctoral thesis and to identify future areas for the development of my research career. This meeting gave me the opportunity to orally present my work, which was a great learning experience.