

Autumn Conferings

Congratulations to our newest College of Science, Engineering and Food Science graduates who celebrated their conferings this November! It was wonderful to see our former students return to campus to celebrate with their families and friends. Thank you to all staff who participated in the conferings and helped make the occasion so memorable for our graduates.

Read more

LISTEN: UCC STEM researchers spin out their projects from the lab to the market

UCC STEM researchers talk about bringing their projects from the lab to the market and how they are poised to bring local solutions to global issues across healthcare and sustainability. Read more

SEFS staff and students represent UCC at COP26

As the only Irish university with official observer status at the United Nations COP26 conference, UCC sent a delegation of researchers and students to the global summit in Glasgow. Read more

Statkraft announces Energy Engineering Scholarships

Statkraft, Europe's largest renewable energy producer, has announced it will fund three scholarships for students of the Honours Bachelor of Energy Engineering degree at UCC.

Read more

Surviving seeds from Hiroshima to be planted in UCC

College of SEFS researchers are leading a project to bring seeds from 'survivor trees' in Hiroshima to Ireland where they will be planted on the campus of UCC. The eventual trees will be made available to local communities across Ireland. Read more

Click to navigate to other eNews

Dr Emanuel Popovici wins Reed and Mallik Medal

Dr Trevor Carey shortlisted for Technican of the Year at Times Higher Education Awards

Professor Emer Rogan among the researchers involved in identifying new whale species

Searching for new medicines in the ocean

Professor Nabeel Riza inducted as a 2021 International Fellow of The Royal Academy of Engineering

Professor Barry O'Sullivan wins Science Award

The Kane Building celebrates 50th anniversary

Happy 50th birthday to UCC's iconic Kane Science Building which was opened in 1971. For the past half a century, UCC students and staff have brought the lecture theatres and labs of the Kane to life, with their own unique experiences of the building. Read more

Click to navigate to other eNews

Dr Emanuel Popovici wins Reed and Mallik Medal

Dr Trevor Carey nominated for Technican of the Year at Times Higher Education Awards

Professor Emer Rogan among the researchers involved in identifying new whale species

Searching for new medicines in the ocean

Professor Nabeel Riza inducted as a 2021 International Fellow of The Royal Academy of Engineering

Professor Barry O'Sullivan wins Science Award

School of BEES student prizegiving

The Lord of Mayor of Cork, Cllr. Colm Kelleher, was among the guests of honour at the School of Biological, Earth and Environmental Sciences (BEES) Student Prizegiving ceremony which was held recently. The winner of this year's Lord Mayor's Perpetual Trophy was Laura O'Donovan (pictured). Read more

Ground-breaking carbon cycle research published in 'Nature'

An international research team, including UCC President, Professor John O'Halloran, has published an article on its findings about the carbon cycle in the prestigious journal Nature. Read more

Electrical and Electronic Engineering students win international competition

Three talented Electrical and Electronic Engineering students have scooped first prize in the prestigious international MAXIM/ElektorAI Design Contest. Read more

Highly Cited Researchers 2021

Highly Cited Researchers List 2021

Congratulations to our College of Science, Engineering and Food Science researchers who feature in a global list of the top 1% of the world's most influential scientific researchers. UCC is the Irish university with the greatest number of entries in Clarivate's 2021 global list of highly cited researchers. Read more