

WOMEN'S VOICES IN IRELAND

An exciting
FREE weekend
festival to explore,
celebrate and
empower women's voices in Ireland

FROM THE DECADE OF REVOLUTION TO THE DECADE OF CENTENARIES

University College Cork, 9-10 June 2017

with additional activities on 11 June in conjunction with UCC Creative and Cork Harbour Festival

WOMEN'S VOICES have not been properly heard, or listened to, in Ireland in the past century. This will be an opportunity to listen to voices of the past and learn to express, and heed the voices of today.
The festival includes activism, history, drama, film, music and poetry and other expressions of the female voice, as well as analysis of that voice through the lens of history, sociology, literature, philosophy, and politics.

BRIEF PROGRAMME

Friday and Saturday: wide-ranging talks, workshops and performances Friday evening: conversation and food in the Farmgate Café with

Our Table

Saturday evening: film and conversation
Sunday morning: walking tour of the Unveiled Horizons exhibition at the Port of Cork.

The event is free but booking essential. To secure your place and for more information on the full programme go to www.ucc.ie/en/womensstudies/
