

Would you like to take part in a global negotiation to address climate change?

COP26 @ UCC

This November, 196 countries of the world will meet in Glasgow at COP26 to negotiate the next stage of an agreement to limit global warming to 1.5 degrees

To mark the importance of COP26 in the global effort to reduce greenhouse gas emissions, on Oct 26th, UCC will host a role-playing version of the negotiations to understand the challenges & to see if a global agreement can be reached.

Participants will adopt negotiating positions for different country groupings & have the opportunity to experience first-hand the challenges of reaching a global agreement on emissions reductions targets that will be tested with climate modelling software.

We are looking for students (undergraduate & postgraduate) to participate as country negotiators

This event is being jointly organised by the President's WG on COP26, UCC Green Campus, and a number of UCC Student Societies. If you have any questions about this event please email Fionn Rogan f.rogan@ucc.ie
