Continuing Professional Development Certificate in Workplace Change: Practice and Skills

(Level 8, Special Purpose Award)

What is the course about?

Organisations require their staff to be increasingly agile to respond to workplace changes, while also demonstrating sufficient personal resilience. This course will provide learners with the key skills and tools to not only survive, but to thrive in times of transformation.

Who should apply?

Managers and people leaders across a range of sectors who wish to tackle challenges such as managing competing demands and evolving new work practices.

How will you benefit?

Framed in the discipline of positive psychology, the core knowledge and skills for learners developed on this programme are critical to empower people and their organisations through a positive change process, thus enabling businesses to become more agile and responsive to a changing world of workplace practice. A strong focus on coaching, mentoring and peer-to-peer engagement features in the course. Auxiliary support in small groups will help to improve and enhance work-based performance, harness and apply personal strengths, embrace adaptability, achieve goals and build resilience in working with changed and changing work practices.

How will it be delivered?

A total of 24 hours of lectures will be delivered synchronously online. Students will also be required to attend 2 x 6-hour in-person workshops distributed over the 10-week course duration. Students will be provided with self-study programme material on the Canvas virtual learning environment which they can work through at their own pace as well.

Fees

€800. This course is part-funded by Cork Chamber Skillnet.
