CHAIRPERSON'S FOREWORD

The National Speak Out Office opened here at Trinity College Dublin in March 2025 with funding from the Higher Education Authority and support from the Department of Further and Higher Education, Research, Innovation and Science. The ongoing work of the National Speak Out Office and publication of this report affirms Higher Education Institutes (HEIs) shared commitment to ending sexual violence, sexual harassment, bullying, and harassment in higher education.

Speak Out is supported by the strong collective voice of HEIs working together to create a culture of zero-tolerance for abuse and negative behaviours, a culture which encourages disclosure and provides trauma-sensitive responses to those impacted. A cross-institutional approach supported by senior leadership in each of our institutions ensures that our responses to negative behaviours are appropriate and effective.

Speak Out is one of several reporting options available to students, staff and others who interact with our higher education community. It provides an option to those who may wish to report abuse and remain anonymous, with the system offering signposting to institutional, local, and national support services. This National Speak Out Report captures and amplifies the collective voice of all those who took the time to report via Speak Out and provides a clear evidence-base for us to build forward from.

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Higher education should provide a safe environment for students and staff, where there is zero tolerance for any form of abuse (Department of Education and Skills, 2020).

To inform a route to this goal, 17 Higher Education Institutions (HEIs) across Ireland are now implementing Speak Out, an anonymous online reporting tool for people to disclose their experiences of bullying, harassment, assault and sexual violence, which provides signposting to support services.

The intent is to tackle the culture of silence around these difficult and traumatising experiences and to make HEIs a safe place for students and staff to report them. Reporters to the online Speak Out tool can communicate their experience in a safe and completely anonymous manner. Their collective data is then analysed to inform responses to these experiences in HEIs and improve formal reporting procedures.

Anonymous reporting tools for incidents of harmful behaviours and sexual violence can be found across HEIs in Europe, the UK, the US, and Australia. They offer a well-established mechanism for providing staff and students with a space to safely disclose their experiences. Research from UK universities has shown that the provision of an anonymous reporting mechanism has led to an increase in formal reports (Universities UK, 2015).

This report is based on data from 16 HEIs who used the Speak Out tool in the two academic years from 1 September 2022 to 31 August 2024. The topline figure for the number of reports made to the UCD Report and Support tool for the same period is also included and this is noted when included. The results should not be read as a direct reflection of the prevalence of these behaviours. The number of reports is expected to rise as the service becomes more established.

ABOUT SPEAK OUT

The Speak Out online tool was developed by the Psychological Counsellors in Higher Education Ireland (PCHEI) and the pilot phase began in October 2021. The development of Speak Out was guided by the national policy framework for preventing and responding to sexual violence and harassment in higher education in Ireland.

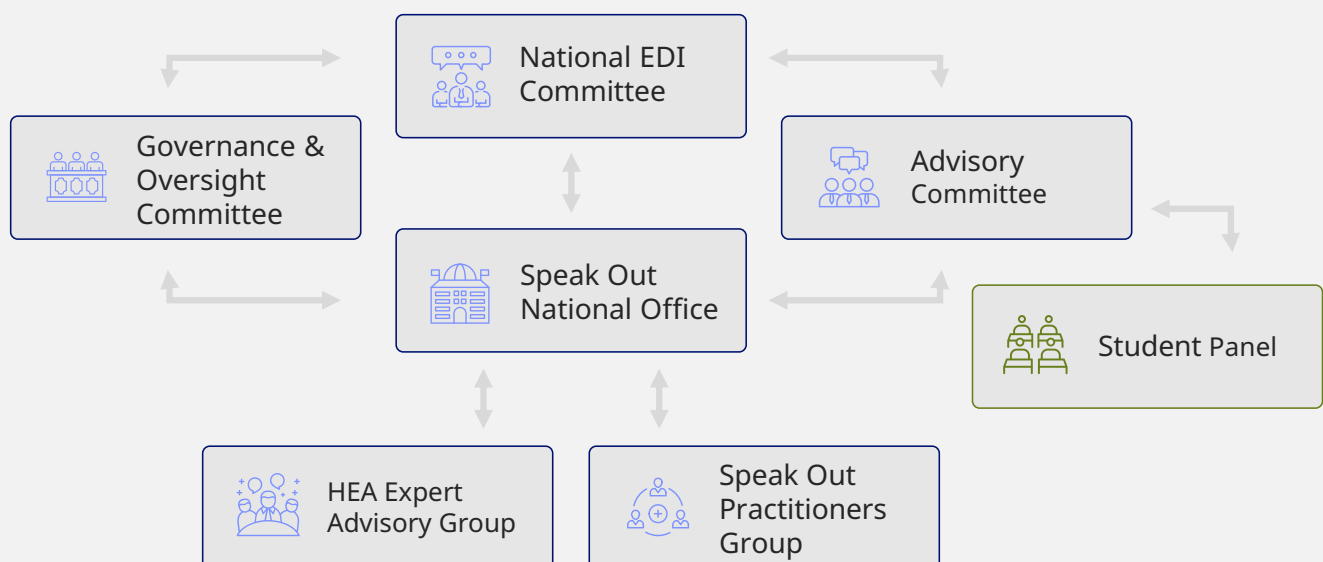

In 2023, the Higher Education Authority (HEA) commissioned an evaluation of Speak Out which was then operating as a pilot (Hand, 2023). The evaluation proposed a consortium model, hosted by an institution or representative body on behalf of implementing members. Trinity College Dublin was successful in applying to host the HEA-funded Speak Out National Office, which began operations in March 2025.

The Speak Out National Office is now working with a wide range of subject matter experts and stakeholders within the HEI sector and broader society, with the support of the HEA and Department of Further and Higher Education, Research, Innovation and Science.

Speak Out is currently available for staff, students and visitors in the below institutions:

Atlantic Technological University, Dublin City University, Dundalk Institute of Technology, Dun Laoghaire Institute of Art and Design Technology, Maynooth University, Munster Technological University, National College of Art and Design, National College of Ireland, Royal College of Surgeons Ireland, South East Technological University, Trinity College Dublin, Technological University Dublin, Technological University of the Shannon: Midlands Midwest, University College Cork, University of Galway, University of Limerick, and Mary Immaculate College. Mary Immaculate College joined Speak Out in September 2025. University College Dublin uses Report and Support as its anonymous reporting tool.

SPEAK OUT NATIONAL CONSORTIUM MODEL

INTRODUCTION

Speak Out is an online anonymous reporting tool which offers a space for all members of HEI communities to speak out about their experiences of bullying, cyberbullying, harassment, discrimination, hate crime, coercive behaviour/control, stalking, assault, sexual harassment, sexual assault, and rape. It provides signposting to a range of local and national support services. Speak Out is currently being implemented in 17 HEIs across the country. This report contains data from 16 HEIs who used the Speak Out tool in the two academic years from 1 September 2022 to 31 August 2024. It also contains one headline data point from the UCD Report and Support tool which provides a similar function to Speak Out in UCD.

This report is possible thanks to the individuals who took the courageous step to make an anonymous report through Speak Out. Their collective experiences provide an insight into the types of behaviours that our Higher Education community experience. The new Speak Out National Office intends to utilise this data to help to drive meaningful change and to inform the improvement of both educational initiatives and formal reporting procedures.

THE KEY GOALS OF SPEAK OUT

- ➔ Provide a space for staff, students, and visitors to safely speak out about their experiences of harassment, discrimination and assault;
- ➔ Promote the visibility of the support services and other options available to staff, students, and visitors to the institution;
- ➔ Contribute to the sectoral efforts to monitor & report on trends of reported behaviours across HEIs;
- ➔ Ensure policy and procedures are informed by the experiences of HEI communities and are accessible to all members;
- ➔ Inform communications campaigns to positively influence respectful and supportive campus cultures;
- ➔ Develop evidence-informed, customised training programmes informed by analysis of the data reported.

University College Dublin (UCD) implements a bespoke but similar anonymous reporting tool called 'Report and Support' that was launched prior to Speak Out in February 2020. A representative from UCD participated in the original Speak Out Steering Group and contributed valuable learning from their experience. UCD is also represented on the Speak Out Advisory Committee and the Speak Out Practitioners group. See more details on UCD's Report and Support tool and annual reports (UCD, 2024). The Report and Support headline data on the types of people reporting to the tool within the time period 1 September 2022 to 31 August 2024 is also included in this report.

The development of Speak Out was influenced and guided by the national policy Framework, entitled 'Safe, Respectful, Supportive and Positive – Ending Sexual Violence and Harassment in Irish Higher Education Institutions' (Department of Education and Skills, 2020). This Framework, published by the government in 2019, has guided and directed the work of Higher Education Institutions and includes the following outcomes related to the reporting of incidents:

Institutions shall record statistics on harassment, assault, and rape and report them in the context of their strategic dialogue with the HEA.

HEIs will create an easy-to-use system for students to disclose and report incidents, which would be reflected in a high level of awareness and understanding among both students and staff.

The reporting system for students is compatible with complainant/survivor rights, cognisant of the needs of vulnerable groups, and has the confidence of the higher education community.

Speak Out helps us to bind wounds but it also helps us map that road. It highlights that transformation is always the deeper, and more necessary task. We commit to and affirm the wider road: to education that changes minds and habits, to policies that protect, and to leadership, not just leaders, that is steady and that is brave."

The Speak Out reporting tool for staff and students in Irish HEI's is a valuable asset in addressing harmful behaviour. When exploring scenarios during Bystander Intervention training, various intervention strategies are explored by the participants. Emphasis is placed on interventions which support the person in need and / or reporting the incident, as being safe and effective. These interventions are within everybody's capacity, and a great starting point to developing skillset. Therefore, the Speak Out tool as an anonymous platform offers active bystanders the opportunity to make a report, implementing their intervention skills whilst feeling safe from repercussion due to its anonymity."

DATA

This report presents highlights from an initial analysis of the aggregated data collected across 16 participating Higher Education Institutions from 1 September 2022 to 31 August 2024.¹ One headline data point which details the number of reports made includes data from the UCD 'Report and Support' tool and where this occurs it is clearly indicated. More detailed UCD data is published in their Dignity and Respect Annual Reports (UCD, 2024).

In the two academic years from 1 September 2022 to 31 August 2024, 1,011 reports were made to Speak Out. Every effort has been made to protect the anonymity of these individuals; no data containing fewer than 10 responses will be included in this report and these are denoted by '< 10'. It is further acknowledged that the experience of each individual is valued in this report, regardless of the perceived prevalence of the issue. It is important to note that the Speak Out tool was in its pilot phase during the time-period this report covers, and we expect the numbers of people using Speak Out to rise over the coming years as the new Speak Out National Office becomes embedded.

It is crucial that it is understood that the number of reports submitted via Speak Out are not a direct reflection of the prevalence of these behaviours, and that in reality the actual incidence is likely far higher than what is reported here. Many factors intersect to inhibit disclosures, some of which are reflected by the data below, not to mention that members of the college community may be unaware of the existence of Speak Out or the other options available to them. Higher levels of reporting have corresponded with awareness raising initiatives in the HEIs and point to a continued need to ensure Speak Out is visible and accessible to all members of our Higher Education community.

Speak Out is completely anonymous and it is not possible to identify any individual that has submitted a report nor is it possible to trace IP addresses. A comprehensive data protection risk assessment informed the development of the tool which has been regularly reviewed and updated, and data sharing agreements were signed with the developers and all implementing institutions. Only a limited number of trained individuals have access to institutional level data. It is not possible for the Speak Out administrator to link any of the aggregated data to specific institutions or individuals.

The data gathered through Speak Out is rich and nuanced. However, to gain a more comprehensive picture, it should be viewed alongside other data sources, such as national survey data and research. HEIs exist within the wider cultural and societal context, and as such many of the issues reported are reflective of the broader experiences of those living within Ireland. Within the timeframe of this snapshot of data, Ireland was still navigating its way out of Covid 19. It is important to acknowledge that for many it was a frightening and isolating experience, and we are still witnessing the lasting impacts of social restrictions placed on people as a result of this.

While this report captures two full years of data, it is important to note that many students and staff do not engage in university business during June, July, and August. The impact of this can be seen in Figure 2, as there is a clear drop in the number of reports across these months. We can also see in Figure 4 that most reports made to Speak Out were made within a year of the incident(s) taking place, with only a small number taking place over a year previous to reporting.

Speak Out Practitioners in each HEI, students, members of the Speak Out Governance and Oversight Committee and Speak Out Advisory Committee and key stakeholders across HEIs have been consulted on the data results presented in this report and have input into how the results have been interpreted and presented.

TOTAL REPORTS

In the two academic years from 1 September 2022 to 31 August 2024 a total of 1,184 individuals at 17 HEIs in Ireland made anonymous reports through the Speak Out tool and the UCD Report and Support tool. Of these 1,184 individuals 894 (76%) reported on their own behalf and 290 (24%) on behalf of someone else. All the following data relates to Speak Out only.

1,011 of these individuals made anonymous reports to 16 Higher Education Institutions through the Speak Out tool. Of the 1,011 individuals, 784 (78%) reported on behalf of themselves, while 227 (22%) reported on behalf of someone else. There were no significant differences in the types of reports being made to Speak Out by those reporting behaviours that they had experienced themselves, and those who were reporting on behalf of someone else.

The majority of reports made to Speak Out were made by students (636 reports or 63%). 303 reports (30%) were made by staff, and 72 reports (7%) were made by others.

Reporter Type	Number of Reports (% of total)
Student (Undergraduate, Postgraduate)	636 (63%)
Staff (Academic, Professional Managerial and Support Staff, Third Party, All Other)	303 (30%)
Other (Visitor, Alumni, Other)	72 (7%)
Total	1,011

TIMELINE OF REPORTS

Figure 2 provides a clear picture of the timeline in which reports were made by students and staff during the two academic years from 1 September 2022 to 31 August 2024. There are clear spikes in the number of reports made by students in November (111) and February-March (74 and 82 respectively). These peaks correlate with awareness raising events and campaigns taking place in HEIs where Speak Out is promoted. There is also a slight peak in reports by students in May (59). Staff have a different pattern of reporting with a peak in staff reports in May (42 reports). Reporting at the end of the academic year by both staff and students may be reflective of them feeling that it is a safe time to report as they or the perpetrator(s) may not be physically present on campus once the academic year ends or that they have time to reflect on the incident when the academic year has ended. As noted previously, report numbers dip during the summer months, however it is noted that reports were received every month.

At RCSI, our commitment to fostering a safe, respectful and inclusive environment is at the heart of everything we do. The Speak Out tool empowers our students, staff and visitors to share their experiences anonymously. By amplifying these voices, we are not only informing policy and shaping targeted initiatives, but also building a culture of trust, awareness and intervention."

DID THE INCIDENT TAKE PLACE WHILE YOU WERE A MEMBER OF THE COLLEGE?

Figure 3 highlights the answers to the questions “did the incident take place while you were a member of the college”. The vast majority of incidents being reported occurred while the reporter was a member of the university, with a minority of reporters using Speak Out to report incidents that took place while they were not members of the university.

WHEN DID THE INCIDENT(S) TAKE PLACE?

Figure 4 illustrates how long ago the incident(s) being reported to Speak Out took place. Most reports made to Speak Out related to abuse that happened sometime within the past year. A small number reported abuse that was perpetrated over a year ago (6% of students, 9% of staff and 16% of Others). For some the abuse was ongoing, and some reported abuse that had been perpetrated over a combination of time periods.

At SETU, we're all about creating a space where students feel comfortable to learn, connect, and get involved in every part of student life. BEHAVIOURS AND FORMS OF ABUSE

Those speaking out were asked “Which of the following best describes the situation you are reporting?”. These individuals were invited to select as many options as they felt related to their experience. The options here included; Bullying, Cyberbullying, Harassment, Discrimination, Hate Crime, Coercive behaviour/control, Stalking, Assault, Sexual harassment, Sexual assault, Rape, Other, and Prefer not to say. Due to the option to select multiple answers, the total sample number of behaviours is greater than the total number of respondents.

Students reported a total of 1,172 behaviours.

303

Staff reported a total of 534 behaviours.

72

Others reported a total of 161 behaviours.

As illustrated in Figure 5 over half of those making reports to Speak Out reported one behaviour. Approximately one quarter reported two behaviours and another quarter reported three or more behaviours.

On a closer examination of the different types of behaviours that people disclosed we see some notable similarities and differences. Figure 6 illustrates that the most common behaviours disclosed by both students and staff are Bullying, Harassment, and Discrimination. Staff also disclosed quite significant levels of Coercive Behaviour with 12% of reports including this type of behaviour. Students disclosed more significant levels of sexual violence than staff with 10% of reports including Sexual Assault and Sexual Harassment, and 5% of reports including Rape.

Students and staff reported significantly different forms of abuse. As illustrated in Figure 8 students disclosed significantly higher levels of purely physical forms of abuse (17%) compared to staff (4%). Students also disclosed higher levels of abuse that included a combination of physical and non-physical behaviour (27%) than staff (18%). Staff reported significantly higher levels of behaviours that were solely non-physical in nature (72%) than students (49%).

The Speak Out anonymous reporting tool provides a pathway for those who may not yet feel ready or confident to come to us directly. It ensures that everyone has a safe, confidential way to share their experiences and concerns. Each anonymous report helps us better understand what is happening across our campuses and informs how we respond, support our community, and continue to strengthen ATU's approach to preventing and addressing gender-based violence."

PERPETRATOR

Figure 9 illustrates the significant differences in the relationships to perpetrators described by people reporting to Speak Out. Multiple answers were allowed in this question as behaviours can be perpetrated by more than one perpetrator, hence the number of perpetrators is greater than the number of people reporting.

Students most commonly reported behaviours that were perpetrated by a student in/not in their class (27%), Friend/Acquaintance/Co-resident/Housemate/Roommate/Club or society contact (21%), and Staff/Teaching assistant (19%). There are also significant reports of abuse perpetrated by a Partner/Ex-partner/Casual partner or hook-up (12%).

Staff predominantly reported behaviours that were perpetrated by other staff (39%), Supervisors/Managers (37%), and Colleagues (17%).

Others reporting to Speak Out most commonly named a Friend/Acquaintance/Co-resident/Housemate/Roommate/Club or society contact as the perpetrator. The figures were too low to present an accurate analysis of the relationship of perpetrator(s) to Others reporting to Speak Out.

LOCATION

Those speaking out were asked “Where did the incident(s) take place?”. Individuals were invited to select multiple answers to this question, as a recognition that they may be reporting a series of related incidences which may have taken place across multiple locations.

Figure 10 highlights the locations reported through Speak Out. In order to protect the anonymity of those speaking out, the specific locations were combined into the categories “On Campus and/or College Related”, “Off Campus and not College Related”, “Online” and “Other”. 69% of staff and 60% of students noted that they experienced the negative behaviour in an “On Campus and/or College Related” location, while 23% of staff and 14% of students experienced the negative behaviour online. 18% of students experienced the negative behaviour off campus or at a non-college related event. 18% of students experienced the negative behaviour off campus or at a non-college related event. 18% of students experienced the negative behaviour off campus or at a non-college related event.

"As a professional counsellor I see Speak Out as a step towards a student or staff member feeling heard. Entering a process that feels formal yet safe enough to call out a harmful behaviour they've experienced. It guides a person towards possible next steps or options they may not have felt were available to them. It accepts and acknowledges their experience because each experience counts and is counted. It captures the HEI's data nationally and has the potential to identify trends that inform policy and initiatives towards ending sexual violence and harassment in HEI's."

FORMAL REPORTING

Those speaking out were asked “Have you (or the person affected) made a complaint/ report through college policy (This includes both formal and informal procedures but does not include disclosures to staff)” and “Have you (or the person affected) made a formal report to the Gardaí?”. The graphs below highlight the responses to these questions; clearly showing that the majority of those speaking out have not made formal reports to either the HEI or the Gardaí.

As illustrated in the Figure 11, 20% of staff and 12% of students made a formal report to their HEI about the abuse. In Figure 12 we see that less than 10 staff and 4% of students made a formal report to An Garda Síochána.

Figures 13 and 14 highlight the top five reasons students and staff felt enabled/motivated to make a formal report to the HEI. Figures 15 and 16 give breakdowns of the top reasons people gave for not making a formal complaint to the HEI. The majority relate to a lack of knowledge of HEI policies and procedures, and low levels of institutional trust.

Those who answered “yes” to the above questions on whether they had made a formal report to their HEI or the Gardaí were also asked to provide further detail on what enabled this decision. The figures were quite low for both answers so only the top five reasons that students and staff gave when asked what enabled/motivated their decision to make a report to the HEI are outlined below in Figures 13 and 14. The answers for both students and staff were very similar, with the majority wanting the behaviour to stop, and wanting accountability and recognition of wrongdoing on the part of the perpetrator. Not wanting the same thing to happen to someone else was also noted as a common reason by those who made formal reports to the HEI. The figures relating to what enabled a report to the Gardaí were too low to include here.

Figure 11 above illustrates that 88% of students and 80% of staff chose to not make a formal report to their HEI about the negative behaviour they experienced. Figure 12 illustrates that 96% of students and 97% of staff did not make a formal report to An Garda Síochána. These individuals were also asked to provide further detail on what impacted this decision. Figures 15 and 16 highlight the responses given to the questions “What impacted your (or the person affected’s) decision not to make a complaint/report through college policy at this time?” and “What impacted your (or the person affected’s) decision not to report to the Gardaí at this time?”. Those speaking out were invited to select as many response options which felt relevant to their experience.

The most common reason for students and staff gave for not making a formal report to the HEI was that they feared that nothing would be done if they make a complaint. This fear speaks to a lack of trust in the formal reporting processes in their HEIs.

Speak Out has grown to be an essential tool for giving students the confidence to safely and effectively report their experiences. As a VP for Welfare in MTU Cork Students' Union, I take pride in supporting a platform that fosters change and reinforces a respectful campus culture."

At MTU, across all campuses, we're continually developing our policies, processes, and culture to prevent sexual violence and harassment; upholding our commitment to a zero-tolerance approach and endeavouring to enhance our capacity to respond to any incidents with care that is trauma-informed and person-centred. Speak Out helps us understand the challenges faced by our staff and students, highlighting where change or challenge is needed so that MTU becomes a safer place to work and study."

CIARA MULCAHY LINEHAN

Coming to university can feel overwhelming, especially if you're far from home or starting fresh and you don't know anyone. Many students don't realise how many services are available until they need them. Being aware of all the resources available and reaching out early, even just for advice or to meet someone you can talk to, can make our university journey so much smoother. UCD offers so many support services that genuinely care about students' wellbeing like academic help, mental health support and support when faced with bullying, harassment or sexual misconduct. It's reassuring to know there's always someone ready to listen and guide you when you're feeling troubled."

WITNESSES TO THE INCIDENT(S)

Figures 21 and 22 highlight the number of incidents reported to Speak Out that were witnessed by other people, and whether or not the witness intervened in the incident being reported.

76% of students and 81% of staff reported that someone witnessed, to some degree, the incident they were reporting. 24% of students and 19% of staff noted that the witness(es) did not intervene.

It is unclear whether this relatively low level of intervention highlighted by people making reports to Speak Out is the result of different understandings of what an intervention is, or if it's a reflection of an unwillingness of bystanders to intervene in unfolding situations. Intervention can take many forms, from intervening in a situation whilst it is unfolding, to checking in with a person who you have witnessed being involved in a situation after the event. Following this, assisting a person to make a report or upon their request, making a report on their behalf is a safe and effective intervention. It is not always safe or appropriate to intervene during an incident taking place. The Bystander Intervention Programme developed by UCC provides guidance and information on how to intervene safely.

SEEKING SUPPORT

Figure 23 highlights that the majority of all people making reports to Speak Out sought support from a person or an organisation after the incident of abuse. 64% of students, 63% of staff and 66% of Others reached out for support.

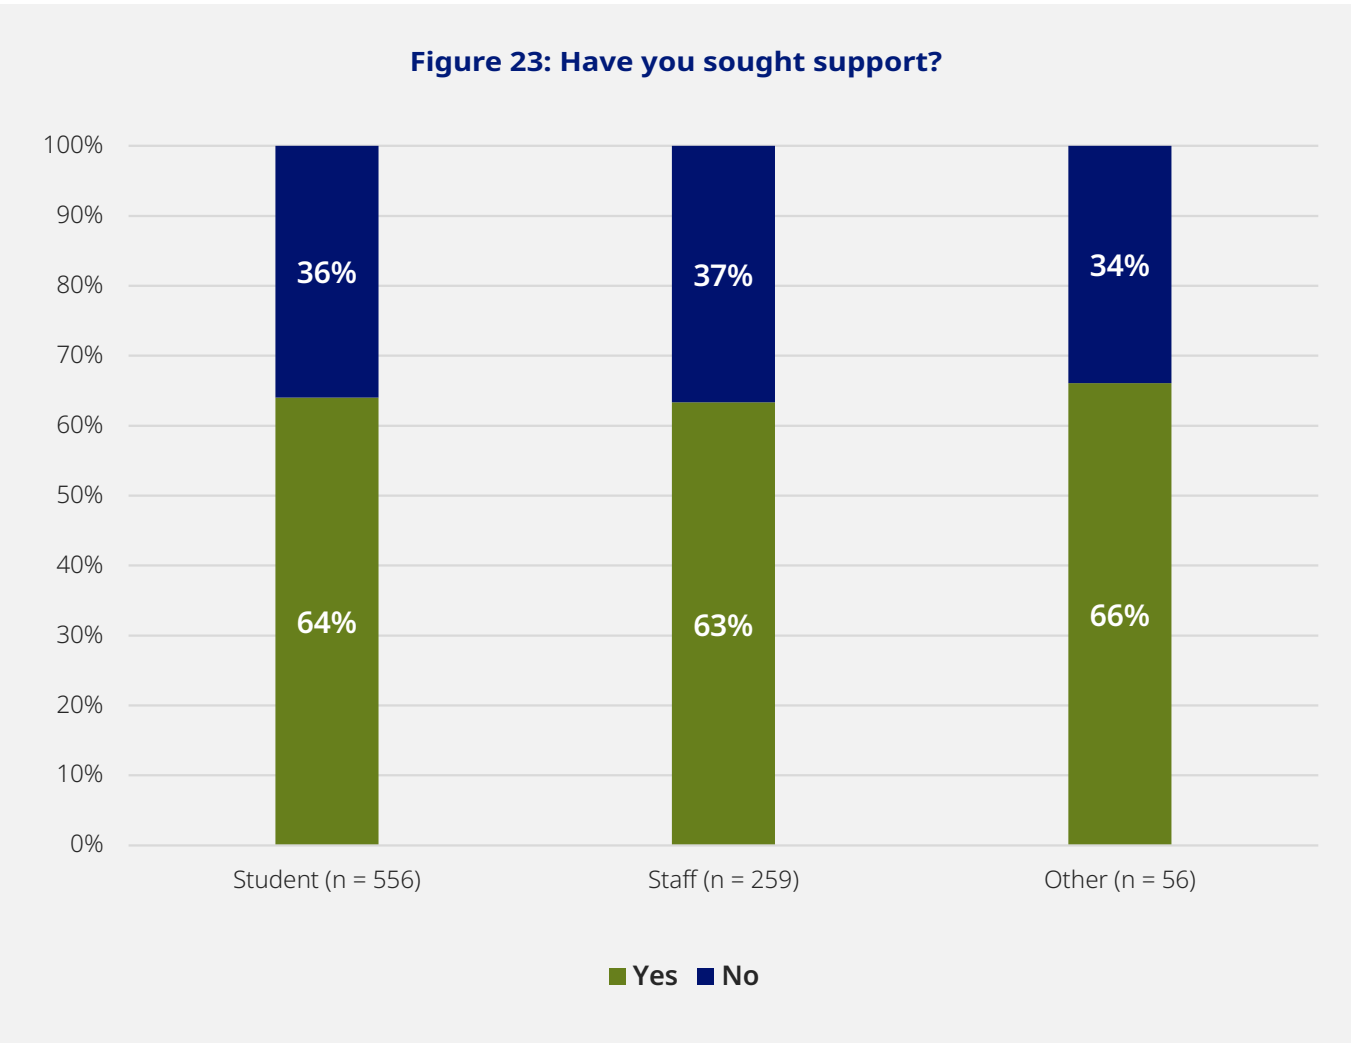

Figure 24 highlights the responses of those who have sought support, and those who have not sought support yet. The question allowed for multiple response options to be selected, and as such the number of reports of seeking support are greater than the total number of individuals who spoke out.

Friends and family members are the most significant source of support for staff and students reporting to Speak Out. This highlights the importance of a broad societal understanding of safe and supportive responses to disclosures of abuse which can positively impact outcomes for survivors/victims, and in turn help to create a culture of disclosure. This is consistent with the findings of the HEA national research on staff and student experiences of sexual violence and harassment in HEIs (MacNeela, et al, 2022).

Speak Out is such an important piece of the cultural puzzle in HEIs in Ireland; the tool is part of a suite of options for raising concerns of abuse within and outside of our institutions. Not only does this provide our community members with more choices for how they wish to address their experiences, but it allows for cross-institutional collaboration in ensuring that we have a whole of community approach to promoting a positive safe and inclusive University."

DEMOGRAPHICS

Of the 1,011 people who made a report to Speak Out 60% chose to complete demographic information about themselves. This section on demographics refers to that 60%. It is important to note that the following data does not represent prevalence in experiences of abuse by people with different demographic identities; it represents the demographic breakdown of those speaking out through this tool who chose to share this information with us.

GENDER IDENTITY

Figure 25 highlights the gender breakdown of those who have spoken out. The list of options provided has been condensed in the below figure to protect the anonymity of those speaking out, and therefore the categories Gender Fluid, Gender Non-Conforming/Queer, Non-Binary, Trans-Female, Trans-Male, and Other are collated within the category “Other”.

The majority of Students (71%), Staff (80%) and Others (73%) reporting to Speak Out were female. 20% of students identified as male and 10% of students identified as another gender identity. 17% of staff were male and the number of staff identifying as other gender identities was too low to provide a further breakdown. The HEA Equal Access Survey results indicates that 0.5% of Irish Higher Education students are either non-binary or do not declare their gender (HEA, 2024).

SEX

Figure 26 illustrates that the majority of people making a report to Speak Out disclosed that their gender is the same as the sex assigned to them at birth (95%). 5% reported that the sex assigned to them at birth does not correlate with their gender identity. Due to the small numbers and need to protect anonymity, it was not possible to provide any additional analysis on this.

Figure 26: Is your gender the same as the sex that was assigned at birth? (n = 582)

SEXUALITY

Figure 27 illustrates the sexuality that students and staff disclosed to Speak Out. A significantly larger proportion of students were lesbian, gay, bisexual, queer, pansexual (35%) compared to staff using Speak Out (13%). The majority of both students and staff reported their sexuality as heterosexual (56% and 86% respectively).

ETHNICITY

Figure 28 shows that the majority of people reporting to Speak Out between 1 September 2022 and 31 August 2024 identified their ethnic group or background as white or white Irish (76%). This includes a small number of Irish Travellers and Roma people. The second largest ethnic identity was Asian or Asian Irish (12%). The breakdown of ethnicities of people using Speak Out who entered their demographic data is generally in line with the 2022 CSO Census figures on ethnicity and the Race Equality in the Higher Education Sector analysis commissioned by the HEA (CSO, 2023; Kempny, et al, 2021). However, Asian/Asian Irish ethnicities feature more prominently in the Speak Out data than what is recorded in the CSO Census figures and the HEA commissioned analysis in Higher Education.

DISABILITY

Those who completed the demographic questions were asked if they had any of the following long-lasting conditions: Blindness, deafness or severe vision or hearing impairment; A condition that substantially limits one or more basic physical activities such as walking, climbing stairs, reaching, lifting or carrying; A learning or intellectual disability; A psychological or emotional condition; and Other, including chronic illness. Multiple responses were possible. 37% of people who completed demographic information on Speak Out indicated having a disability of some kind. As illustrated by Figure 29 students reporting to Speak Out were more likely to have a disability than staff (39% of students compared to 29% of staff). A psychological or emotional condition was the most common form of disability disclosed by students, followed by other disabilities or combinations of multiple disabilities, and learning or intellectual disabilities. Staff disclosed other disabilities or combinations of multiple disabilities as the most common form of disability, followed by a psychological or emotional condition. The most recent HEA Equal Access Survey Results indicates that 20.2% of new entrants to Higher Education in Ireland have a disability. (HEA, 2024).

TUS's aim is to provide a safe and empathetic environment that supports students experiencing difficult personal circumstances, such as incidences of sexual harassment or violence, and to report such incidences through appropriate channels. TUS fosters a culture of collective empowerment and awareness and institutional responsibility. TUS's institutional responsibility is in creating an environment where any disclosure is met with care, confidentiality and action, as evidenced in its policies and procedures."

MARGINALISED IDENTITIES

In order to understand the impact of demographic indicators on those reporting to Speak Out, an analysis of marginalised identities was conducted. There is a large body of existing research which demonstrates that structural inequalities and inequitable power structures in society cause those with particular identities to experience higher levels of inequality and marginalisation (Burke, et al, 2020; CSO, 2023; EIGE, 2025; Flynn, et al, 2024; FRA, 2024; FRA, EIGE, Eurostat, 2024; HEA, 2024; Kempny, et al, 2021; MacNeela, et al, 2022). To examine this in detail a count of marginalised demographic indicators was conducted. 49% of people who completed the demographic questions on Speak Out indicated that they had one or more marginalised identities. This included people who indicated that:

- Their Gender Identity was neither male nor female
- Their Sex assigned at birth did not match their Gender Identity
- Their sexual orientation was LGBTQI+
- Their ethnicity was non-white (excluding White Traveller and White Roma)
- They had some form of disability, and
- Their religion was anything other than Christian, Atheist or Agnostic.

To understand how having one or more marginalised identities impacted experiences of abuse, the data was examined further. As illustrated in Figure 31, those with marginalised identities reported higher levels of multiple forms of abuse (54%) than those with no marginalised identity (44%).

This was more prevalent among staff that shared their demographic data with Speak Out, with Figure 31 showing that 59% of staff with one or more marginalised identities reported multiple forms of abuse compared with staff with no marginalised identity (38%).

	Marginalised identity	No marginalised identity
One form of abuse	46%	56%
Multiple different forms of abuse	54%	44%

We welcome the publication of Speak Out's national report, which highlights the bravery and courage of victim-survivors across the country - staff and students alike. The report contributes to an expanding evidence- base on the experiences of staff and students with harmful behaviours in Higher Education. It reaffirms what we know: victim-survivors of sexual violence are disproportionately women, gender minorities, and people with disabilities. At NCAD, trauma-informed practice is a core foundation of our culture. We challenge norms, expand ideas, and continually strive to create a community grounded in care and respect. I encourage any member of staff or student who experiences bullying, harassment, discrimination, or sexual violence to reach out and seek support."

NEXT STEPS

The Speak Out National Office team which began operating in March 2025 have championed Speak Out by focusing on relationship building, cross-institutional engagement, and using the data to drive messaging and engagement. Strong and enduring collaboration with HEIs and other relevant stakeholders is key to the continued success and accessibility of Speak Out. The new Speak Out National Office team are Elaine Mears (Coordinator) and Gillian Connolly (Administrator).

Governance

The Higher Education Authority and Department of Further and Higher Education, Innovation and Science support for Speak Out has enabled the Speak Out National Office to be established, and the continued development of Speak Out and work to increase awareness of the tool can now progress. The consortium model Speak Out governance structure has been developed and includes a broad range of expertise from across the higher education sector and civil society. Continued and longer-term funding for Speak Out is essential to sustainability of the tool.

Stakeholders

The behaviours that Speak Out captures encompass issues that are dealt with by multiple areas within each HEI and therefore require cross-institutional engagement and response. The Speak Out National Office have begun working with a broad range of stakeholders across HEIs to ensure that key functions who have a role in preventing and responding to negative behaviours and abuse are engaged with Speak Out. These relationships not only raise the profile and awareness of the tool, but they help to build community and strengthen relationships of mutual support between HEIs.

Responding to individual HEI needs

Throughout 2025, the new Speak Out National Office conducted a needs assessment and site visit to all HEIs using Speak Out to determine their specific learning and support needs. This informed a clear direction for a long-term Speak Out National Action Plan which is now in development and responds to the unique characteristics and realities of each HEI.

Broadening understanding

Speak Out has a unique function within the range of HEI reporting options and responses to negative behaviours and abuse. Speak Out allows the individual to remain anonymous whilst still enabling them to have their story inform HEI policy and responses to abuse. It offers a platform to express and name the behaviour in a safe manner and be signposted to support services. For some it may be the first step in exploring other HEI reporting options available to them such as informal or formal reporting processes. Broadening the awareness and understanding of Speak Out as one of a range of options available is key to ensuring those impacted by abuse have choice in how they process and vocalise their experience, and that pathways to support are more accessible.

Review of data collection

The Speak Out National Office have begun a comprehensive review of Speak Out data collection to assess gaps in how we collect data, review language and terminology used in the tool, determine synergies in comparative data collection tools and research, review accessibility of the tool, and enhance the overall data entry experience of those using Speak Out.

Take the time to make a report, to ensure we know what is going on and we can seek to promote a culture of disclosure, challenging secrecy and bad behaviour.”

METHODOLOGY

BACKGROUND

Speak Out is an online anonymous reporting tool developed by the Psychological Counsellors in Higher Education Ireland (PCHEI). HEI Counsellors were in a unique position to develop an anonymous reporting tool due to their therapeutic perspective and insight into the experience of survivors of sexual harassment and violence and decided to build a bespoke anonymous reporting tool which addresses the specific needs of the Irish higher education community.

This bespoke tool was developed in consultation with representatives from each participating Higher Education Institution and guided by a Steering Committee composed of sectoral representatives and subject matter experts. This pilot phase was hosted by DKIT led by Rachel Skelly. The Speak Out tool was developed in collaboration with implementing institutions and with financial support from the Department of Education and the Higher Education Authority, in addition to the support of the Minister for Further and Higher Education, Research, Innovation and Science. The tool is a direct response to the publication of 'Safe, Respectful, Supportive and Positive: Ending Sexual Violence and Harassment in Irish Higher Education Institutions', by Department of Education in 2019, which outlines how institutions should provide safe, accessible and trusted mechanisms for disclosing and reporting experiences of sexual violence and harassment.

DATA COLLECTION

The data in this report is compiled from 16 HEIs using Speak Out in the two academic years in the period between 1 September 2022 and 31 August 2024. The data represents students, staff, and others such as alumni and visitors to HEIs who interacted with these 16 HEIs within this time-period. Speak Out is advertised in HEIs through a range of physical and digital mediums, as well as in training and orientation. The headline figure which indicates the reporter type also includes data from the UCD Report and Support Tool. This is clearly indicated. It is important to note that the Speak Out tool was in its pilot phase during the time-period this report covers, and we expect the numbers of people using Speak Out to rise over the coming years as the new Speak Out National Office becomes embedded.

Speak Out is completely anonymous and it is not possible to identify any individual that has submitted a report nor is it possible to trace IP addresses. A comprehensive data protection risk assessment informed the development of the tool which has been regularly reviewed and updated, and data sharing agreements were signed with the developers and all implementing institutions. Only a limited number of trained individuals have access to institutional level data. It is not possible for the Speak Out administrator to link any of the aggregated data to specific institutions or individuals. To ensure anonymity no data categories containing fewer than 10 responses are included in this report. In instances where there are less than 10 responses it is noted with '< 10'. The n value for these categories is then calculated using the maximum possible value of 10 and denoted with a 'n = < x'.

The tool contains a series of tick-box questions which give the opportunity to those speaking out to provide details of their experience in a safe and anonymous way. Some questions allow for multiple responses and for this reason 'n' values vary between tables and graphs. A number of the response options provided throughout the tool also include definitions and seek to increase awareness about different forms of behaviour. It is intended that the process of working through the set of questions will help staff and students to come to terms with their experience. This report was compiled by Speak Out National Coordinator Elaine Mears.

UNDERSTANDING THE DATA

Speak Out is an anonymous reporting tool available to anyone who interacts with the HEI communities who have implemented the tool. The Speak Out data is not a prevalence study and should not be interpreted as such. It is a snapshot of the types of negative behaviours experienced by people in our HEI community. It offers people who may not feel ready or simply may not want to make a formal report or explore any other informal processes for dealing with the behaviour they are reporting the opportunity to communicate their experience. The tool allows the reporter to communicate their experience in a safe and anonymous manner, where their collective data is then analysed for significant patterns which can be used to inform responses to these experiences within HEIs.

Speak Out is one of a suite of resources available within HEIs for students, staff and others to report negative experiences and abuse. HEIs are working to create safe and accessible environments for everyone in our HEI community, and to encourage a culture of disclosure and zero-tolerance for all forms of abuse.

At TU Dublin, Inclusion and Respect are central to our community. The Speak Out Tool plays a vital role in maintaining a safe and supportive environment by enabling staff and students to report concerning behaviours, such as bullying, harassment, discrimination, or sexual violence, confidentially and securely.”

IADT is committed to a zero-tolerance approach to sexual violence and harassment, as outlined in our Dignity and Respect Policy for Sexual Misconduct. We actively promote this commitment by establishing new policies, providing staff training, and displaying Speak Out digital banners and posters across the campus. We are also launching online modules for students on key topics: Consent, ESVH, Bystander Intervention, and responding to Disclosure. We are dedicated to providing responses that are trauma-informed.”

HWAYOUNG LEE

Administrative Lead, ESVH Sexual Violence Prevention and Response Manager - Institute of Art Design and Technology

As one of the early adopters of the Speak Out tool, TUS has found it to be very helpful in gauging staff and student concerns, and using that information in developing and implementing preventative strategies and tailoring our training and messaging to make TUS' commitment to a safe and supportive campus clear to all of our community."
