Changing Research Careers

Career Trajectory

- Traditional academic career paths have shifted significantly in recent decades.
- Training and development are now essential for long-term career success.
- Postdoctoral Researchers are encouraged to plan their career goals early, as academic routes are becoming more competitive and less common.

Career Planning Matters!

Your ideal career won't happen by chance—having a plan greatly increases your success.

Develop Transferable Skills

- Identify and strengthen your transferable skills
- Use a Training Needs Analysis to build your Professional Development Plan (PDP)
- Combine regular training with ongoing career discussions with your PI/supervisor
- Review progress and goals regularly

Support at UCC

- UCC offers extensive resources to support your career development

The "Acorn to Mighty Oak" has come to symbolise students' academic and professional development journey throughout their time at UCC. We believe this is also true for our staff. In alignment with this rich metaphor, the support services available to our staff are presented in the form of a Resource Tree. This tree depicts the support services and resources available to staff and provides links to further information about each service.
